PREFACE.

To all who have pleasant memories of lovely Lafayette this book is offered as a sort of album, to be interleaved by the possessor with such of his own rich reminiscences as may be evoked by reading the facts recorded on these pages.

The material for this record has been gathered through many years from countless sources—many of them now vanished from the earth,—and the compiler is well aware that every critical eye will discover not a few errors and innumerable omissions in it, most of which were unavoidable on his part. These he greatly regrets, but could not help, because of the silence of those chiefly concerned, to whom many circulars and letters of inquiry sent were not efficacious in eliciting the desired replies.

The aim of the work throughout has been to present at least the following items in regard to each person named :—1st, The full name and collegiate title ; 2d, His profession or occupation ; 3d, His residence when a student as given in the college catalogues, and present or latest ascertained residence ; 4th, The literary society and fraternity with which he may have been connected ; 5th, The date and place of birth, and of professional study ; 6th, Any special honors, distinctions or prizes obtained in college or elsewhere, and positions held ; 7th, Any literary or scientific work accomplished.

The large collection of programs, the record of the members of the Faculty, of the Board of Trustees, and of the recipients of honorary degrees ; the Geographical Directory, and Military Roll, will be of marked interest to many readers.

None can fail to be delighted with Professor Owen's interesting History of the College, and Mr. Alden March's chapter on Athletics, much as they will regret the extreme brevity of each.

It remains for the compiler to express his gratitude to the many friends—too many to be mentioned by name—who have rendered efficient and most acceptable service in enabling him to perfect this record ; and also to add, that his task would have been far easier, and the result correspondingly more agreeable to the reader, had the financial necessity for close condensation not been so imperative. To all who labor in this field of research there is ever present the burden of expense to be borne by the author alone, with the promise of but partial reimbursement.

SELDEN J. COFFIN.

ABBREVIATIONS.

Geographical abbreviations, and those peculiar to college life will be readily understood by the reader. The following frequently occur:

EXPLANATION.—Throughout the biographical record it is assumed that the graduates spent four years in College unless the contrary is expressly stated.

A date followed by a dash ——, indicates that the person is still at the same place, or that the date at which he left that place is not known.

Pennsylvania is to be understood when no State is given.

The roll of membership in the Literary Societies and Fraternities—although made an object of special care—is not as nearly perfect as the compiler desires.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES

—OF—

LAFAYETTE COLLEGE

WITH AN ACCOUNT OF ITS PRESENT ORGANIZATION AND COURSES OF STUDY.

—BY—

WILLIAM BAXTER OWEN, Ph. D.,

Professor of the Latin Language and Literature in Lafayette College.

Extract from the Minutes of the Trustees of Lafayette College, January 26, 1876.

The United States Bureau of Education, having requested the Colleges of the United States to prepare, during the Centennial Year, sketches of their history, with an account of their present organization, courses of study and other matters of interest to the friends of education, Resolved: that Prof. W. B. Owen be requested to prepare such sketches, etc., of this Institution, and that the same be published under the directions of the Prudential Committee.

Note.—A few corrections have been made in this third edition (1889), and such changes and additions have been introduced as seem to be required to bring the history down to the present time.

PETITION FOR A CHARTER FOR LAFAYETTE COLLEGE.

(The original now in possession of S. J. Coffin.)

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met: The Petition of the Subscribers, Inhabitants of the said Commonwealth, Respectfully Represents, That a memorial has been presented to your Honorable Bodies on behalf of the Trustees of "Lafayette College," located at Easton, praying for an act of Incorporation—Your Petitioners, believing that the plan of Education proposed to be adopted in that Institution, in which Military science and tactics will be combined with the usual course of academical studies, and a due attention paid to the modern languages, especially the German, will be productive of much good to the Students and the public in general; and that such an Institution is much needed in this section of the State—pray your Honorable Bodies that a Charter of Incorporation may be granted to the said Trustees, and such Legislative aid be extended to the Funds of the Institution as you, in your wisdom, may deem proper.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES

—OF—

LAFAYETTE COLLEGE.

THE early history of Lafayette College, though within the memory of many persons yet living, seems already to her younger sons to belong to the olden times. We must go back more than fifty years to find the humble beginnings of what we now see. Easton was then a thriving town of about twenty-five hundred inhabitants, and was quite remarkable in at least two respects, the marvellous beauty of the scenery, of which I shall have occasion to speak again, and the culture and literary taste that characterized its society. Its Clergy were conspicuous for scholarly attainments. The Bar was known all over the State for the learning and ability of its members. It was also the home of many persons distinguished in public life, such as George Taylor, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; George Wolf, Governor of Pennsylvania; Samuel Sitgreaves, U. S. Commissioner to Great Britain under President Adams; James M. Porter, Secretary of War under President Tyler; Governor A. H. Reeder; Richard Brodhead, U. S. Senator, etc. The intercourse of such able and scholarly men was the expression of their intellectual life and taste, as well as of their social instincts, and it seems natural that the thought should arise in their minds of making Easton a seat of learning by founding an Institution for the higher education.

FIRST ORGANIZED MOVEMENT.

The first organized movement to establish a College, was a meeting held on the evening of December 27th, 1824, at White's Hotel, in the Northeast Corner of the Public Square. Due notice had been given, and a large number of the public-spirited citizens came together to talk the matter over. Col. Thomas McKeen* presided at the meeting. After full discussion it was unanimously voted, "That

* Col. McKeen was of Scotch descent, but born in the North of Ireland on the 27th of June, 1763. He came to America in his twentieth year, and settling in the vicinity of Easton, engaged first in teaching and afterwards in mercantile pursuits. In 1815 he accepted the Cashiership of the Easton Bank, of which he became president at the death of Mr. Samuel Sitgreaves in 1826. The latter position he held till it is expedient to establish at this place an institution of learning in which the dead languages and the various branches of education and science usually taught in colleges, together with the French and German languages, civil and military engineering, and military tactics, shall be taught." The introduction of the military feature was not unnatural to these men about whom the memory of the old wars still clung: the second war with Great Britain was not further from them than the late civil war is from us, and these founders of the new institution of learning had been taught, as the paper adopted at the meeting declares, that "a freeman's arm can best defend a freeman's home," and that the well instructed citizen should not only know his rights but should also know how to defend them.

And then the question arose about a name for the new institution. It will be remembered that General Lafayette had landed in New York City on the Sixteenth of August previous, on his last visit to the country he so nobly served. His progress throughout the land was marked by one continued ovation, and these citizens of Pennsylvania not unmindful of the wounds he had received on her soil, resolved, "That as a testimony of respect for the talents, virtues and signal service of General Lafayette in the great cause of freedom, the said institution be named LAFAYETTE COLLEGE."

That these men were in earnest in this matter and were fully resolved to carry into immediate execution the project they had formed, is seen in the last of their resolutions, viz: "That James M. Porter,† Joel Jones,‡ and Jacob Wagner,‖ be a committee to draft a memorial to the Legislature for a charter of incorporation, and for legislative aid."

THE VIEWS OF THE FOUNDERS.

These gentlemen accordingly prepared a memorial to the Legislature in which they briefly set forth the history of the movement, 1851. Eminent in business circles, Col. McKeen was also a leading man in many enterprises that bespeak the large heart and liberal mind of the Christian citizen. He was for many years Treasurer of the Board of Trustees of Lafayette College, and one of the most liberal of its early friends. He died in 1858, in his ninety-sixth year.

† James Madison Porter, to whom more than to any one person, Lafayette College owes its origin, was born near Norristown, Pa., January 6th, 1793. His early education was carefully conducted up to his preparation for the junior class, with the intention of entering the College of New Jersey, at Princeton. This purpose, however, he abandoned, and read law in Reading, Pa., with his brother, then President Judge of the Third District, and was admitted to the bar April 23d, 1813. He first located in Philadelphia, remaining till 1818, after which, until his death, he resided at Easton. In a few years he stood at the head of the bar in legal and forensic ability, although still comparatively a young man. In 1837–38 he was one of the foremost members of and develop more at length their plans. It was not their design that the tactical parts of a military education should curtail the usual course of College studies, but on the contrary, by thus providing judicious and healthful modes of spending leisure, they hoped to increase the efficiency of the literary departments.

The original scheme contemplated a preparatory course, that students might be received with no other previous qualifications than the rudiments of an English education ; the whole course to require seven years, which, however, they hoped to shorten by improved methods of instruction.

the convention for revising the Constitution of Pennsylvania. He was President Judge of the Twelfth Judicial District from June, 1839, till July, 1840. Under President Tyler's administration, he was for some time a member of his Cabinet as Secretary of War. In 1849 he was elected a member of the State Legislature. In the spring of 1853 he was elected President Judge of the Twenty-second District, but on account of ill health he was obliged to resign early in 1855. From this time he pursued the practice of law until his death, November 11th, 1862. In 1843 he received from Marshall College the degree of Doctor of Laws. He was for twenty-five years President of the Board of Trustees of Lafayette College, and for many years, also, Professor of Jurisprudence and Political Economy. His reputation as a man of great learning and eminent legal ability drew many young men whose names appear in the catalogues of that period as students of law.

‡ Hon. Joel Jones, LL. D., was a native of Connecticut, born in Coventry, October 26th, 1705. At the age of fifteen he went to Hebron and engaged in business with his uncle. It soon became evident, however, that this mode of life was not suited to his intellectual tastes and aspirations. In the midst of his work he prepared for Yale, where he was admitted to the Freshman class in 1813. After graduating with high honor, he commenced the study of law with the late Judge Bristol of New Haven, and afterwards finished at the Law School in Litchfield. After the completion of his studies, he resided for a short time in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., whence he removed, in 1822, to Easton. He rose rapidly at the bar, acquiring a wide reputation for learning and ability. He was appointed by Governor Wolf one of the three Commissioners to revise the laws of Pennsylvania. In 1834 he removed to Philadelphia, and became President Judge of one of the city Courts. From this post he was called to the Presidency of Girard College, and was afterwards elected Mayor of the city of Philadelphia. He died February 3d, 1860.

Judge Jones was a man of fervent piety and of remarkable attainments in various fields of learning, in theology and biblical criticism, in languages Oriental, ancient and modern, as well as in jurisprudence.

‖ Jacob Wagner, son of Judge Daniel Wagner, one of the early settlers of the place, was a native of Easton, born in 1799. Though a young man at the time of the founding of the college, he was made a member of the Board of Trustees, and for many years took a prominent part in their deliberatious and labors. He was an influential and public-spirited citizen, whose culture and learning no less than his eminent social and business qualities contributed to give him a high position in the community. Those who knew him speak with special warmth of his attainments in literature and of his studies in mineralogy and botany, in which sciences he made valuable collections that now have a place in the college cabinets. He died in 1858.

In reference to the department of Language and Literature, their words are so suggestive as containing the prophecy if not the germ of the present course in English studies (of which I shall speak at length hereafter), that the following sentences possess a peculiar interest:

"An addition will be made to the language course usually adopted. In this branch students commonly limit their attention to the dead languages. This is to be regretted. The living languages certainly have some claims to attention which the dead have not. Particularly is it to be regretted that after acquiring the Latin, the Romanic dialects of modern Europe should not receive that small portion of time which is necessary to acquire them. But the language most neglected in our seminaries of learning is the English. It is, we think, one of the follies of the learned to expend time and toil and money in the minute investigation of the languages of other times and other people, at the expense of omitting the equally curious and more useful investigation of their own. The Anglo-Saxon, the German, the Danish, the Swedish, etc., ought long since to have been made a part of the education of our youth. Lest we should be thought to prescribe a course impracticable within a reasonable time, we will add that the period usually allotted to the Latin and Greek merely, would be, under a proper method of instruction, amply sufficient for the acquirement of all we have mentioned."

At that time the only chartered colleges in Pennsylvania, east of the Alleghanies, were the University at Philadelphia, and Dickinson College at Carlisle. The latter (founded 1783), had been compelled by financial embarrassment to close its doors. The former, by reason of the greater temptations of the city as well as the greater cost of living, was objectionable to remote rural sections; and it was felt to be a serious hindrance to the cause of liberal education, that young men must be sent to the distant Colleges of other States. Ease of access from those parts of the State which the College was originally designed to benefit, the abundance and cheapness of the means of living, together with the healthfulness of the situation and its excellence as a field for botanical and mineralogical research, were the main points favorable to the location at Easton.

Fifty years of change and development have abundantly proved the wisdom of this choice. LAFAYETTE now receives students from all over the Union instead of from a limited portion of Pennsylvania; but the location could not be changed for the better, even in view of this wider sphere of patronage. Easton is situated at the confluence of the Delaware and Lehigh rivers, toward the northern terminus of the Cumberland Valley, in a region so fertile and beautiful, so rich and productive in varied resources that it may well be called the garden of the Atlantic slope. It has become an important point on the great highways of travel between New York and the West and Northwest. Instead of the two days' journey by stage to New York, when the college was chartered, there are now three different lines of railroads between the two cities, aggregating sixteen daily trains, and the "express" time two hours and a half. There are now ten daily trains to Philadelphia—time by the express, two hours and a quarter. The railroad communication with the West and Northwest is also most ample: so that for ease and access from every part of the country the place is all that can be desired. The Lehigh, in its upper course, winds its way among hills stored full of coal, iron and slate, and the more recent development of these resources has made the city an industrial center, presenting rare facilities for the pursuit of technical and practical branches which are now embraced in the courses of study at the College.

THE CHARTER GRANTED.

The Legislature granted the charter * March 9th, 1826. It was signed by Joseph Ritner, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Alexander Mahon, Speaker of the Senate, and J. A. Shultze, Governor. The charter vested thirty-five persons therein named, † with the usual powers of a College, and to fill vacancies in their board by election. It provided, "that there shall be forever maintained in the said College, a Professorship of the German Language, and in addition to the usual course of collegiate studies, there shall be taught in and at the same institution, military science and tactics, and civil and military engineering."

THE COLLEGE ORGANIZED.

The Board of Trustees met for organization as directed in the charter, May 15th, 1826. James M. Porter was elected President, which position he held for twenty-five years, Joel Jones, Secretary,

* Not, however, without opposition. The project to establish "another college" did not commend itself to all the Solons of that day. In Henry's history of the Lehigh Valley it is stated that among others opposing the charter of Lafayette College was Mr. Herster, who stoutly objected to the study of the dead languages, "which," said he, "adds no more to scientific knowledge than the croaking of frogs."

† The Charter Trustees were, Robert Patterson, John Hare Powel, Peter A. Browne, Andrew M. Prevost, Benjamin Tilghman, Silas E. Wier, and John M. Scott, of the city of Philadelphia; Samuel Sitgreaves, Thomas McKeen, Peter Miller, Philip Mixsell, Jacob Weygandt, Jr., John Bowers, James M. Porter, Christian J. Hutter, Jacob Wagner, George M. Barnet, John Carey, William Shouse, Peter Ihrie, Jr., J. Worman, Joel Jones, J. R. Latimore, Thomas J. Rogers, Joseph K. Swift, George G. Howell, Peter S. Michler, Jesse M. Howell, Philip H. Mattes, George Hess, Jr., Jacob Kern, George Weber, and Anthony McCoy, of the county of Northampton; Walter C Livingston, of the county of Lehigh; and William Long, of the county of Bucks.

and Thomas McKeen, Treasurer. A committee was appointed to prepare and publish an exposition of the plan and purposes of the institution, and the Board at once, through its committees, entered upon measures to secure a President and Faculty, and to raise funds for the erection of suitable buildings, and for the purchase of apparatus, library, etc.

But their success was far from encouraging. The Legislature had not voted them the desired aid, and it must be remembered that the region was comparatively new, and the people upon whom they mainly depended for contributions were too busy working up its material resources to give much attention to intellectual improvement. But the fathers of Lafayette never gave up. This indeed is the heroic element in the labors of those who founded the College—their unwavering faith in the nobility and ultimate success of their work.

In August, 1827, the Trustees made overtures to "The American Classical and Military Lyceum" at Mount Airy, to remove the Institution to Easton and conduct its operations under the new charter. They assured the gentlemen in charge of that Institution that Lafayette College "should ultimately be inferior to none in our country," and they dwelt with enthusiasm upon its prospects, "the surrounding country so populous, picturesque, fertile and salubrious; so rich in mineral and botanical productions; the necessaries of life so abundant and cheap;" but the trustees of the American Classical and Military Lyceum replied by the next mail, recounting greater and more substantial advantages already secured by them and therefore "declined to abandon such advantages for mere expectations at any other place."

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT.

It was not until the next year that the Trustees made the first formal offer of the Presidency. In February, 1828, Professor List, of Reading, was elected President of Lafayette College. This eminent scholar responded promptly, "I would not hesitate to connect myself with the Institution immediately, had I not entered into various engagements which make it impossible for me to do so." He recommends, however, in the strongest terms, Dr. Jaeger,*, who had recently arrived from Germany, and negotiations were accordingly entered into with him but without success.

In January, 1832, Dr. John Gray † named to the committee Rev.

* Benedict Jaeger, subsequently Professor at Princeton College, 1836-41

† Rev. John Gray, D. D., was born in the county of Monaghan, Ireland, in December, 1798. He pursued his studies at the University of Glasgow, and subsequently George Junkin, A. M., * "as a gentleman eminently qualified to take charge of the institution." Mr. Junkin at that time had charge of the "Manual Labor Academy of Pennsylvania," situated at Germantown. The Trustees invited him to come to Easton, examine the charter of the College, its location and prospects. He came accordingly, had an interview with the committee and made the preliminary examinations and inquiries.

On the 6th of February, 1832, the Board appointed Mr. Junkin studied theology under the distinguished Dr. John Dick. In 1820 he came to America, and for some time preached in the province of New Brunswick; he came to Easton in 1822, and became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and continued to minister to this congregation till 1867 – a period of nearly forty-five years. He died January 12th, 1868. Dr. Gray was a warm friend of the college, and for thirteen years served as a trustee. He was an able theologian and a scholar of varied culture.

* Rev. George Junkin, D. D., LL. D., son of Joseph Junkin, and the sixth of fourteen children, was born in Cumberland county, Pa, November 1st, 1790. His earliest years were spent on his father's farm, where, by close application to study in the intervals of work, he prepared for college. He graduated at Jefferson in 1813. After studying theology privately for some time, he entered the Theological Seminary of the Associate Reformed Church, in New York City. Having completed his theological course, he was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Monongahela, September 13th, 1816. He was soon called to the charge of the United Congregations of Milton and McEwensville, Pa., where he remained about eleven years. In 1830 he became Principal of the Manual Labor Academy, at Germantown, one of the first institutions of the kind to go into operation in the United States—the Fellenberg Academy, in Massachusetts, being started about the same time and on the same plan by Prof. James H. Coffin, afterward an associate of Dr. Junkin in Lafayette College. Two years later he became the first President of Lafayette College. In 1841 he accepted the Presidency of Miami University, Ohio, remaining three years, when he again returned to Easton. He was Moderator of the General Assembly in 1844. In the fall of 1848 he again left his "lovely Lafayette," to accept the position of President of Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Virginia. Here he remained until May, 1861, when he resigned the presidency and removed to Philadelphia. He was now seventy-one years of age, but with force unabated he filled up his remaining days with an activity almost past belief. Among the soldiers, in camp, field and hospital, as a colporteur, a preacher and a writer, he worked on with a marvellous zeal and vigor. He died in Philadelphia May 20th, 1868

Dr. Junkin was a man of acknowledged ability, and profoundly learned, especially in theology and metaphysics. These were his favorite pursuits, in which he excelled both as a student and as a teacher. Men of eminence in Church and State, who sat at his feet during their educational career, give their cheerful testimony to his magnetic power over his students, and to his enthusiasm as well as his profound learning in the subjects which he taught. Of his powers, however, I cannot more fitly speak than in the words of Dr. Breed: "The mind of Dr. Junkin well harmonized with the material home in which it lodged—massive, compact and strong. To say that he was a man of talents—of talents of a very high order—is to say the truth, but only a part of the truth. He was a man of genius—with all the force, fire and originality of true genius." Of his qualities of heart Dr. Knox, with equal truth, says: "A man of greater magnanimity, of truer, deeper, tenderer affections, I do not believe ever lived."

President of the College, which appointment he agreed to accept if the military requisition of the charter could be dispensed with. This was done by a supplement passed by the Legislature, April 7th, 1832.

THE SITE UPON THE SOUTH BANK OF THE LEHIGH.

The Trustees then leased for two years the farm and buildings belonging to Christopher Midler, for the purposes of the College, and to enable the President to conduct its operations on the manual labor principle. The premises consisted of about sixty acres of land and ordinary farm buildings, situated south of the Lehigh river, directly opposite the borough.

In March, President Junkin came to Easton and began the work of fitting up the college premises. In this he was aided by several of the young men who had come with him from Germantown, and the work was so rapidly pushed that the regular exercises of the College began May 9th, 1832. The session opened with forty-three students, most of whom came with President Junkin. The number soon increased to fifty-six, and there were also during the year eleven "day scholars," making in all sixty-seven students in attendance during the first College year at Lafayette. The first term closed October 10th, with a public examination. The Trustees and other literary gentlemen present expressed themselves highly pleased throughout, and particularly with the work in the mathematical department. On the evening of the same day public exercises were held in the Presbyterian Church. A large assembly was gathered. The Trustees read their first report and orations were delivered by students, representing the Washington and Franklin Literary Societies.

The College was now fairly under way. Many a hard struggle was yet to be endured, but an auspicious opening had been secured by transplanting the Manual Labor Academy, and the Trustees saw a good work going on under faithful hands, and the ultimate success of the enterprise seemed assured. All honor to these noble Fathers of Lafayette!

THE PERMANENT SITE OF THE COLLEGE.

The efforts of the Trustees were next directed towards securing a a permanent site for the College. After a careful examination of all the locations suggested, they made a purchase of nine acres of land (a part of the present site), for $1400.

A better selection certainly could not have been made. In a region abounding in most charming views, that one point which if possible surpasses all the rest in the loveliness of its outlook was chosen to be the site of the infant College. All the variety of the varied and picturesque scenery which has made the "Forks of the Delaware" celebrated far and wide, lies before this little mount, and can be taken in with a single sweep of the eye. At its foot the Bushkill winds; on the south and west the Lehigh, whose course may be traced by the steam of locomotives and the smoke of furnaces that line its banks; on the east, the Delaware sweeping its broader current southward; across the city, seven miles away are the Musconetcong Hills stretching off eastward into New Jersey as far as the eye can see. On the north, half a mile away, is Chestnut Hill and Paxinosa, beyond which and from whose top facing northward, one may overlook a broad and beautiful valley bounded by the Blue Mountains, the even line of whose summit is broken in three places; just in front of the beholder the "Wind Gap," twelve miles away in a direct line; on the right hand "Delaware Water Gap," twenty miles away; on the left hand "Lehigh Gap," twenty-five miles away.

On every side nature has spread her charms with a lavish hand, and art vies with nature to heighten the impressive beauty of the scene. One never tires of looking at it. The students at the end of their College course linger on the brow of the hill with the same enthusiastic delight as at first, nay even with a more profound appreciation of the rich and varied beauties around.

THE COLLEGE EDIFICE.

Preparations were early made for the erection of a suitable building on the new site. The ground was broken by Dr. Junkin himself in June, 1833, and on the morning of the 27th, Judge Porter, President of the Board of Trustees, himself laid the first stone. One week later, July 4th, the corner stone was laid with appropriate ceremonies. The local public interest in the event was a very marked feature of the occasion. A procession made up of the College authorities, students and citizens, together with the civil and military organizations of the vicinity, was formed at the Court House (then located in Centre Square), moved at half-past nine, A. M., to the College grounds, where the stone was laid and an address delivered by Rev. B. C. Wolf. The procession then returned to the German Reformed Church, where at half-past eleven o'clock, Hon. Joseph R. Ingersoll, of Philadelphia, delivered the oration pursuant to the appointment of the Franklin and Washington Literary Societies.*

* The PHILOMATHEAN Literary Society was founded July 4, 1830, in the Pennsyl-

The building was urged on as rapidly as possible during the summer of 1833, and was so far completed as to be ready for occupancy in May, 1834.

The structure (now the central part of south college and one of the most substantial edifices on the Hill) was 112 feet by 44, with a recess of 17 by 49 feet. The basement, first and second stories of limestone, rough laid, and the third and fourth stories of brick, the whole finished in rough-cast. There were six recitation rooms, a chapel, refectory hall, steward's rooms, apartments for the President and other officers of the college, and about 50 rooms for the students. The building had an old fashioned "hip roof" covered with slate, and surmounted with a simple open dome fourteen feet in diameter. Although finished in a style of extreme and severe plainness it was the pride of the town. At its completion it was brilliantly illuminated by the students, who made the day one of great festivity and rejoicing.

INAUGURATION OF THE FACULTY.

The ceremonies of inaugurating the President and Faculty, which had been deferred until the building should be completed, took place May 1st, 1834, in the College Hall. The following composed the Faculty: *

vania Manual Labor Academy at Germantown. In 1831 some dissension arose among the members, the precise nature of which does not appear, and a few of them held a preliminary meeting, November 26th, 1831, the final result of which was the founding of the FRANKLIN Literary Society. Afterwards (1832) the name of the former was changed from "PHILOMATHEAN" to "WASHINGTON" Literary Society.

These "Halls" have continued in friendly and stimulating emulation, to the present time. The exercises of the weekly meetings are mainly the same as at first, viz., the reading of original essays and critiques, declamations, debates and original orations. They have occupied since 1881 the two halls on the third floor of Pardee Hall, which they have elegantly furnished for their purpose, WASHINGTON the west and FRANKLIN the east; and their respective libraries the adjoining rooms.

The BRAINERD MISSIONARY SOCIETY may be noticed in this connection. It was founded February, 1833, and named in honor of Rev. David Brainerd, the illustrious missionary who made the vicinity of Easton one of his stations. The society was organized with a view to promote a missionary spirit among the students, and its influence is seen in the moral and religious tone of the college as well as in the number of devoted men among the alumni who have consecrated themselves to the work of foreign missions. Until the formation of THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD (of which I shall speak in another place) the daily prayer-meeting in Brainerd Hall was held under the auspices of this society, and also the system of Sabbath-schools carried on by the students as superintendents and teachers, and now embracing not less than nine schools within a radius of four miles from the college.

* Professor McCay, for a long time afterward an eminent educator at the South (University of Georgia), Professor Kuhn, now a prominent lawyer of Pittsburgh, and Rev. George Junkin, A. M., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy, Logic, Rhetoric and Evidences of Christianity.

Charles F. McCay, A. B., Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

James I. Kuhn, A. B., Professor of the Latin and Greek Languages.

Samuel D. Gross, M. D., Professor of Chemistry, Mineralogy and Botany.

THE EARLY FEATURES OF THE COLLEGE.

Some distinctive features of the inner life of the institution deserve here a brief notice. With reference to the curriculum, during the first ten years no permanent plan of study appears on the records. I shall however refer to this subject further on.

The Manual Labor System was continued. President Junkin was a zealous advocate of this scheme. Its partial failure at the Germantown Academy he attributed to disadvantages of location rather than to any real defects in plans or principles, and thought to renew the trial at Lafayette under more favorable circumstances. The Trustees entered heartily into his views, and speak in the warmest terms of a scheme which promised such large results, not only in bodily health and the saving of money, but in promoting mental activity and the development of manly independence of character. * But notwithstanding these advantages claimed for it, the President was obliged after a thorough trial to admit its failure as a part of the College scheme. He therefore recommended its abandonment, and it was accordingly given up by the Trustees in 1839.

Another feature of the original plan, containing the germ of the present system of State Normal Schools, was the preparation of teachers. The system of common schools was then attracting a good deal of attention throughout the country. The authorities of the College with the view that the fundamental object of any general school system must be the thorough training of teachers, established as a part of the curriculum of the College, a "teachers' course," designing to issue special diplomas to such students as might graduate in it; and further, if the patronage and public bounty should enable them to do so, to add to the course "A Model School," in which the art of governing and of communicating knowledge might be taught in connection with the various branches of instruction. But it was found upon trial, that the number of young men who looked forward to teaching as a profession and could devote themselves uninterruptedly to the necessary training, was not large enough to warrant the continuance of this department of the College. It was therefore abandoned; but, it may be stated in this connection, that the Trustees of the College have not lost sight of the importance of the thorough training of teachers for their responsible duties. The College catalogue in referring to the different courses of study, speaks of "the special professional study of Theology, Medicine, Law and Teaching," thus recognizing teaching as one of the learned professions; and it is the design of the Board, as soon as the funds of the College will allow, to establish a distinct chair for the training of teachers, who at Lafayette will have the benefit of the college culture, with all the appliances of the libraries, apparatus, scientific collections, etc., afforded by its munificent endowments.

Dr. Gross, the celebrated Professor of Surgery at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, are all pleasantly remembered by the early graduates as men of fine scholarly attainments as well as most efficient instructors in their respective departments.

* From the address delivered by invitation of the Trustees at the "First Annual Commencement," by Hon. William Rawle, I take the following extract, as showing the prevailing views upon this point: "By a judicious and well arranged union of the arts of industry with scientific and literary studies in their various departments, Lafayette College now offers to the rising generation as extensive a field for intellectual improvement as any of her sister institutions, while the healthful pursuits of mechanical and agricultural labor preserve the youthful constitution from the wasting effects of mental exertion, and at the same time give to the mind that strength and independence which always result from the proud consciousness of self-support. Among those sister institutions she now takes her stand, and this day sends forth into the world her first offspring, to play their part in the great drama of life."

The moral and religious training of the students was a subject upon which the founders of the College felt deeply, and to which they made frequent reference in their published reports. The Bible was carefully studied, and punctual attendance at morning and evening prayers, and at Divine Service upon the Lord's Day was required of all the students. Morning prayers were at five o'clock, winter and summer; and upon the Sabbath, these early devotions were immediately followed by a Bible-class. "This exercise," says the Fifth Annual Report, "generally occupies an hour. It is exegetical, didactic, polemic and practical." At evening worship "such of the students in order as are willing to officiate are called upon to lead in prayer."

The government of the College was administered on the principle of strict and systematic vigilance. Dr. Junkin was a man kindly but severe, authoritative and with a wonderful force of personal presence. From his private apartments one door opened into the refectory, where all the students ate "under the eye of one or two professors," and which was rightly considered one of the most difficult departments to govern ; another door led to the prayer hall. The residence of the other members of the Faculty was also managed with a view to "facility of access," and arrangements made for frequent visits to the rooms of students in order, as the early catalogues say, "to keep up a perpetual vigilance over the whole." Under this system of strict supervision, and perhaps by reason of it, there grew up some peculiar shades of student life almost unknown to us now-a-days, except through vague traditions. The ways they had of circumventing the watchful Faculty, their tricks and pranks, their midnight noises, their sudden detections and marvellous escapes, their rebellions, trials and punishments, all this would make up a chapter in the early history of Lafayette of great interest, at least to the present generation of students.

But, withal, this severe surveillance had a tender side. It assumed a certain waywardness of the young men, but its aim was to provide healthful moral restraints ; and it was true then of the College, as it has been for the most part throughout its history, that the high moral and religious tone was such as to commend it warmly to public confidence as a place where young men may safely spend the most decisive period of life. A very large portion of the students were professors of religion representing various denominations, and many of these looking forward to the Christian ministry ; so that independently of the pastoral oversight of the President and the religious care of instructors, there was that best of all influences, growing out of the voluntary association of earnest Christian young men.

One of the early catalogues referring to the "evidence of a good moral atmosphere" in the fact that no case of discipline had occurred at Lafayette during the year, adds, with pardonable enthusiasm, "Blessed is that College whose laws are lost sight of by becoming incarnate in the hearts of all its members !"

PRESIDENT JUNKIN'S ADMINISTRATION.

Dr. Junkin resigned the Presidency in 1841, to accept the Presidency of Miami University, Ohio. He was however recalled in 1844,* and remained at the head of the College until 1848, when he

* His letter accepting the reappointment is characteristic of the man, prompt, generous, enthusiastic. "Most gladly do I accept," says he, "the appointment to which the kind partialities of your Board has called me !" and in concluding his letter he anticipates with enthusiasm "being among a people who have more than fully appreciated our work and services and who have hearts within their bodies !"

again resigned and assumed the Presidency of Washington College, Virginia.

Even this brief history would be incomplete without a grateful record of his laborious and self-denying efforts for the College during the thirteen years he was President. Few ever toiled with more enthusiasm and at times with greater discouragement, to accomplish a cherished object. In one of his published Baccalaureates he compares the progress of the College to that of a "traveler who spends his long and toilsome day in passing from mountain crag to mountain crag without appearing to have gained much either in elevation or distance;" and he adds, not without a tone of sadness, "shelving crag indeed and rolling rock, and mountain torrent, and chilling iceberg, and deep dark ravine we have encountered." Indeed, there were times when his strong brave heart failed and his purpose seemed to falter. He refers in a letter published January 7th, 1864, to one special period of depression, in 1837, when he called a meeting of the friends of the College in Philadelphia, and "submitted to them the question of his abandoning the enterprise in which he had been engaged for nearly seven years. He stated his entire willingness to cease all efforts for the establishment of Lafayette College, if the present meeting should so advise." But fortunately all these friends* opposed the abandonment, and cheered by their words he returned to his toil. The records and publications of the College, as well as his memoirs, bear testimony to the same ardor and zeal and the same heroic struggling with difficulties until his second and final relinquishment of the enterprise in 1848. He never ceased, whether absent or present, to cherish the College in his heart. In 1842, when President of Miami University, he delivered the Commencement Oration, by invitation of the Literary Societies, and in his letter forwarding the MS. at their request for publication, he refers with his accustomed ardor to "lovely Lafayette" (as he was wont to term it,) "around which the fondest affections of this parent heart still cling." Although his second resignation was occasioned or hastened by personal difficulties with certain members of the Board (of which this is not the time to speak), there was no permanent alienation of his interest or of his affections, and when he returned north in 1861, he

* Among these Dr. Junkin especially mentions Dr. Archibald Alexander and Dr. John Breckinridge. Dr. Alexander was most earnest in his opposition to giving up the enterprise. Referring to the college at Princeton, of which he was a Trustee, he said: "There is no danger of injurious competition, but probable benefit from the kind of rivalry which may spring up. I should be very sorry to see the ground at Easton abandoned and the labor lost. It must not be!" renewed at once the associations of his earlier years. Many of the more recent Alumni will recall his venerable form upon the platform, year after year, at Commencement and at other public exercises of the College. He rejoiced at the wonderful growth of the Institution, over the first beginnings of which he had watched with such earnest solicitude, and the papers relate how at the Commencement in 1865, when called upon to pronounce the benediction, he advanced to the front of the platform and pointing through the open windows to the new buildings that crown College Hill, said with a voice trembling with emotion and that thrilled the whole audience, "all that this fond heart of mine ever dreamed for lovely Lafayette is fast being accomplished, and I am ready to say, Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation."

It should be added that for the last three years of his life the name of Dr. Junkin again appears upon the College catalogue : "Emeritus Professor of Political Economy."

COLLEAGUES OF DR. JUNKIN IN THE FACULTY.

Among the eminent scholars associated with Dr. Junkin in the Faculty at Lafayette, besides those already mentioned, there are still living, Dr. Traill Green, elected Professor of Chemistry, 1837, and who is still with us, loved and honored ; Rev. James C. Moffat, D. D., afterwards Professor at the College of New Jersey, and now in the Theological Seminary at Princeton ; and Rev. Wm. Henry Green, D. D. LL. D.,* a graduate of Lafayette (class of 1840), and now Professor of Hebrew and Oriental Literature in the Theological Seminary at Princeton. Among the learned dead are such men as Rev. Robert Cunningham, of Scotland ; Rev. David X. Junkin, D. D. ; Washington McCartney, LL. D., † a man of wonderful learning

* Professor Green was elected President of Princeton College in 1868. It was noted with pleasure by the friends of both Princeton and Lafayette that each college had furnished to the other its President—Dr. Cattell, at that time President of Lafayette, being a graduate of Princeton College. Dr. Green, however, preferring the duties of his Professorship in the Theological Seminary, declined the position offered to him in the college.

† Hon. Washington McCartney, LL. D., was born in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, on the 24th of August, 1812, and died July 15th, 1856. He graduated with the highest honors, at Jefferson College, in 1834, and was the next year appointed Professor of Mathematics in Lafayette College. In 1836 he accepted the Professorship of Mathematics and Modern Languages in Jefferson College, but soon returned to Easton and resumed his position at Lafayette, August 15th, 1837. With some intervals he held his position in the Faculty till 1853, (from 1849 to 1853 as Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy,) during which time he published his celebrated work and genius, of whom the older Alumni delight to speak, and James H. Coffin, LL. D.,* whose lamented death in 1873, after a faithful service of twenty-six years, is still felt as a recent bereavement. Prof. Coffin is well known to the world as a gifted scholar. Professor Henry and other eminent scientists at home and abroad have spoken of him in the warmest terms as an admirable example of a successful investigator, whose labors have contributed most valuable results to the fund of human knowledge; but we students knew him best as a teacher and as a man. As a teacher his faithfulness was a proverb; and he threw into his work that vigor and enthusiasm which rarely fails of success. As a man he was kind, and noble and good, beyond any power of my words to tell it. Everybody loved him. He had some personal peculiarities, but he was loved even for these, for they were not the outgrowth of faults, but only the excesses of his virtues, of his great kindness of heart and strict integrity of character. A grand life indeed! a beautiful one too, beautifully mellowed and moulded by Christian gifts and graces. There was no phase of it that would do violence to one's best ideal of manhood. The world misses him, but none more than those who knew him best.

upon "Differential Calculus," which for many years was the text-book on that subject used in our best colleges. He was also the author of "The Origin and Progress of the United States," (1846). The honorary degree of LL. D., was conferred upon him by Marshall College in 1852. He was admitted to the bar of Northampton County, Pa., January 18th, 1838, and was elected President Judge of the Third Judicial District in 1851, and held the Judgeship until his death. The brief inscription upon his monument in the Easton Cemetery—"SCHOLAR, JURIST, CHRISTIAN"—well describes this remarkable man.

*James H. Coffin, LL. D., was born in Williamsburg, Mass., on the 6th of September, 1806. He graduated at Amherst College in 1828, and the year following established, at Greenfield, Mass., the Fellenberg Manual Labor Institution, which for eight years continued to be one of the rarely successful instances of this system in our country. He afterwards became the Principal of the Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Academy, and in 1839, a member of the Faculty of Williams College. In 1846 he became Professor of Mathematics in Lafayette College, where he remained till his death, February 6th, 1873.

Professor Coffin was an eminent scholar, a diligent and fruitful worker in Mathematics and the sciences, particularly in the department of Meteorology. His work in this field he carried on from the time of his graduation, even in the midst of his constant labors as an educator. He was fitted for it by the best gifts of heart and head. A man of clear, strong and candid mind, of scrupulous integrity of character, of conscientious regard for accuracy in the execution of his work, and above all, a lover of the truth for its own sake. His great work, "The Winds of the Globe," almost completed at the time of his death, was finished by his son, and published under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution in 1876.

PRESIDENT YEOMANS.

In Dr. Junkin's letter tendering his first resignation, December 25th, 1840, and which the Board accepted with the expression of their "gratitude for his able and faithful labors," he urges, with a thoughtful regard for the interests of the College, that "immediate measures be taken to fill the vacancy hereby created, as I know that the hope of keeping the students together will depend much upon speedy action." Accordingly the next week the Trustees met for the purpose of electing a successor, and the names of no less than eight candidates urged by their friends were placed upon the records of the Board. It was not however till a month afterwards (January 26th, 1841), that an election was had, when Dr. Alexander T. McGill, then Pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian Church at Carlisle, late Professor in the Theological Seminary at Princeton, was unanimously chosen President of the College. Upon his declining the appointment, as the records of the Board say, "being very much urged by his congregation to remain in his present situation," the Rev. James W. Alexander, D. D., then Professor at Princeton College, was by a unanimous vote offered the Presidency. He also declined (his letter stating "that his health would not permit him to accept"), and at the next meeting of the Board the Rev. John W. Yeomans, D. D., * then Pastor of the Presbyterian Church, of Trenton, New Jersey, was elected, and to the gratification of all the friends of the College accepted the situation and was inaugurated August 18th, 1841.

*John William Yeomans, D. D., was born in Hinsdale, Massachusetts, on the 7th of January, 1800. When quite young he served some time as an apprentice, but soon turned his attention to study and commenced his preparation for college under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Cummings, of Albany, N. Y. After the short space of a year and a half spent in preparatory study, he entered the junior class of Williams College, Mass. He graduated in 1824 with the second honor in his class, Mark Hopkins (afterwards President), being the first. For two years he was Tutor in the college, after which he studied theology in the Seminary at Andover, Mass. His first pastoral charge was at North Adams, Mass., where he remained from November, 1828, till the spring of 1832, when he became pastor of the First Congregational Church of Pittsfield, Mass. In the spring of 1834 he was called to the First Presbyterian Church of Trenton, N. J., as successor to the Rev Dr. James W. Alexander. In the spring of 1841 he accepted the Presidency of Lafayette College, remaining until the early part of the year 1845, when he became pastor of the Mahoning Church, in Danville, Pa., where he continued in the discharge of his ministerial duties until his death, June 22, 1862. Dr. Yeomans was a deep thinker and a vigorous and able writer He was regarded as one of the leading theologians in the Presbyterian Church, and as a metaphysician, he had probably but few equals among his brethren. The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by three different colleges at the same time,—the College of New Jersey, Williams College and Miami University. In 1860 he was elected Moderator of the General Assembly.

Dr. Yeomans was a ripe scholar, an able teacher, and a stern officer. His administration was not marked by any great progress, or by anything that lifted it out from the even tenor of that period, but it was a time of transition and therefore of more vital importance than would appear in the mere outward history. The College was freeing itself, one by one, from the experiments of its early history and settling more and more into tried collegiate ways, an experience that severely tested the faith and endurance of the President and of those who so nobly devoted themselves to its interests. Among these changes may be mentioned the recent abandonment of the manual labor plan. Though a step plainly necessary it was nevertheless regarded with much disfavor by a large class of patrons, particularly those upon whom the burden of self-support bore heavily. Although the necessary expenses of the College course even at the maximum were remarkably light, a great many of the young men were in such circumstances that even the slight aid afforded by this system was a matter of great importance.

Dr. Yeomans resigned in 1844. At the same meeting at which his resignation was accepted, September 7th, Dr. Junkin was unanimously re-elected to the Presidency and held the office as before mentioned until September 19th, 1848, when he resigned to accept the Presidency of Washington College, Lexington, Virginia.

DR. NASSAU, PRESIDENT-ELECT.

Upon the resignation of Dr. Junkin in 1848, Rev. Charles W. Nassau, D. D.,* Vice-President of the Faculty assumed executive charge of the College. Dr. Nassau was indeed President-elect from March 13th, 1849, but to the great regret of the friends of the College was never inaugurated, and resigned in September, 1850. It was not at all due to any want of executive talent or of scholarly ability in this worthy man, that the College was in 1849 and 1850 greatly embarrassed in its condition and prospects. In the fall of 1848 when the College year opened, it was without a President, and to aggravate its difficulties and to threaten even its final overthrow, some parties holding its loans began to press their claims at the law, so that against the slow but steady increase of the preceding years, there was from the time of Dr. Junkin's resignation a very marked falling off in the patronage. The number in attendance in the four College classes fell from 82 in 1848, to 25 in 1850. This was sapping the life-blood of the College. Without any resources in the way of a permanent endowment, the income of the College from tuition fees, inadequate at the best, became almost fatally so at any considerable decrease of the number of students. It seemed indeed to many, as if the College must be closed.

* Dr. Nassau was born in Philadelphia, April 12, 1804; graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1821; studied theology at Princeton and was ordained by the Presbytery of Philadelphia, November 16, 1825; he was pastor at Norristown 1825–33; taught at Montgomery Square, 1829–32; was Professor of Latin and Greek in Marion College, Missouri, 1836–8; was Vice-President and Professor of Latin and Greek in Lafayette from 1841 to 1848, and acting President until 1850, when he took charge of the Young Ladies' Seminary at Lawrenceville, N. J., which prospered greatly under his able administration. From this position he withdrew in 1875, and died at Trenton, N. J., August 6, 1878. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Jefferson College.

THE COLLEGE CONNECTED WITH SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

At this period the question of Parochial Schools, Presbyterial Academies and Synodical Colleges was exciting general interest throughout the Presbyterian Church. In these discussions, that eminent Divine, Dr. Cortland Van Rennselaer, Secretary of the Board of Education, took a prominent part, urging the scheme by popular addresses and numerous publications. Other men, among the most distinguished in the church, earnestly advocated the plan,* and it seemed to the Trustees as if this scheme afforded a guarantee not only for the permanence of the College, but for its increased usefulness. Although it had hitherto been "undenominational," its Presidency had always been occupied by Presbyterian ministers and nearly all of its Professorships by members of the Presbyterian Church. Most of its benefactors and patrons were also members of this denomination,† and it seemed to require only a slight change

* Dr. Charles Hodge, in his address before the General Assembly, 1847, said: "We ought to look forward and strive to carry out the good old Presbyterian plan, of having one or more schools in every parish, a classical academy in every Presbytery, and a college in every Synod, all under the control of the Church.

† The charge of sectarianism was early brought against the College, and was in fact one of the great difficulties with which it had to contend in its early history. In 1834, when the Trustees applied to the Legislature for aid, remonstrances were sent to Harrisburg on the ground that the college was a sectarian institution, and "the students were required to attend the Presbyterian Church on the Sabbath." This charge continued to be urged against the College by the public, and, indeed, was the subject of no little contention among its officers and immediate friends. After the College became avowedly a Presbyterian institution it was often remarked that it seemed to possess the confidence, and certainly received the cordial co-operation, and even patronage, of other denominations to a much greater extent than when it tried to perform the difficult duty of preserving an even balance between them. It is worthy of notice that in no period of its history has there been so large a proportion of its students from other denominations as at the present time; many of them preparing for the ministry of their own churches.

to make the College avowedly a Presbyterian Institution. Accordingly overtures were made to the Synod of Philadelphia, and in 1850 it was formally received under the care and patronage of that venerable body, and the charter was amended by the Legislature to correspond to the fact.

PRESIDENT McLEAN.

Under the new regime the Rev. D. V. McLean, D. D.,* was elected President and was inaugurated in 1851. He at once undertook to raise a permanent endowment of $100,000 by the sale of scholarships; the sum of $100 entitling the subscriber to the tuition of all his own sons or the sons of any person to whom he might transfer the certificate; no subscription to be binding until the whole amount of $100,000 was subscribed.† President McLean pushed the work with untiring energy, and the full amount was pledged by the first of January, 1854. Monday, January 2d, was celebrated by the students in honor of the result. The College building was illuminated in the evening, and the students with the Faculty and other interested assembled in Brainerd Hall, where they were addressed by Mr. Edsall Ferrier, a member of the Senior class, (afterwards Vice-President of Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg) and, in response, by the President. A torch-light procession through the town ended the rejoicings of the day.

This success brought the College again into favorable notice, and the number of students upon the rolls in 1856, reached 106, the highest number that had ever been enrolled in the four regular classes. But the financial relief was only temporary. Of course

* Daniel V. McLean, D. D., was born in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, November 24, 1801, but reared in the vicinity of Carlisle. He graduated at Ohio University, and in 1827 entered the Princeton Theological Seminary, where he remained about two years. He labored successfully as a pastor in Lebanon, Ohio, and Freehold, N. J. He was called to the Presidency of Lafayette College in 1850, and remained till 1857, when he again resumed the duties of pastor, ministering to a congregation in Plainfield, N. J., and later in Redbank, N. J. He died at the latter place November 23, 1869. The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on him by Lafayette College in 1842. He was a man of fine abilities, and was eminent for energy of character.

† The tuition fees for each student amounted to $160, and therefore if but one person entered upon the scholarship there would be a considerable saving. But even with this liberal offer to subscribers it seemed to many friends of the College scarcely possible to raise so large a sum as $100,000, and Dr. McLean, in his communication to the Trustees, July 22d, 1851, speaks of it as "a work of amazing magnitude, to accomplish which will require an amount of labor and toil almost superhuman."

the scholarships cut off nearly the entire revenue from tuition so that the financial condition of the College was scarcely, if at all, improved by the increase in the number of students, while they added largely to the expenditure. It was found also that a large part of the subscriptions could not be collected, and that a considerable part of that actually paid was sunk in liquidating the debts of the College, so that in 1857, when Dr. McLean resigned, the Trustees found themselves in the old and somewhat chronic condition of extreme pecuniary embarrassment. It was at first resolved as a matter of economy not to make any appointment to the Presidency, but for a time at least, to divide the executive duties among the existing members of the Faculty.

PRESIDENT McPHAIL.

The Rev. G. Wilson McPhail, D. D.,* a man of rare scholarly ability was at this time pastor of the Brainerd Church in Easton, and it was proposed to him to preside at the Commencement, and to give for a mere nominal consideration such time to the affairs of the College as he could spare from his pastoral duties. This proposition he generously accepted ; but it soon became evident that the College absolutely needed an Executive, and that Dr. McPhail possessed eminent qualifications for the place, so that he ultimately resigned the pastoral care of the Brainerd Church, and gave his whole time and strength to the College, where as a profound scholar, and successful teacher, his memory is still cherished. He was formally inaugurated President of the College in 1858.

But notwithstanding the renewed efforts of its friends and the practice of the most rigid economy, the financial condition and the general prospects of the College grew worse, until at the breaking out of the civil war in 1869, new and greater difficulties were encountered. We shall not soon forget the patriotism and self-sacrificing spirit with which men of all classes in the universal uprising of 1861, went forth to bear the hardships of the camp, and brave the perils of battle. Among those who so nobly responded to this call, the graduates and under-graduates of our colleges, as statistics show, were represented in larger proportion than any other class. In this Lafayette bore her full share.*

*Rev. George Wilson McPhail, D. D., was born in Norfolk, Va., in 1816. He spent two years at Hampden Sidney College, Va., then entered Yale and graduated in 1835. He pursued his theological studies at Hampden Sidney. His first charge was in Cumberland county, Va., from which place he removed to Fredericksburg, where, in addition to his pastoral duties, he conducted very successfully a female seminary. In 1854 he was called to Easton as the first pastor of the Brainerd Church. In October, 1857, he was elected President of Lafayette College, which place he occupied till 1863, when he resigned, and became connected with Professor Saunders' Seminary, Philadelphia. At the close of the war he returned to Norfolk, Va., and soon after, accepted the Presidency of Davidson College, N. C., where he remained until his death, which was very sudden, occurring on commencement day, June 28th, 1871. The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on him by Jefferson College, in 1857. He was a true scholar, an able preacher, and a warm-hearted, Christian gentleman.

In 1862, after the battle of Antietam, the students enlisted in considerable numbers. In 1863, when Lee invaded Pennsylvania, the rush to arms was so general that the College was almost without students. There was no Commencement in '63, the Seniors who should have graduated that year taking their degrees the year following.

Besides the enlistment of students, the depression of the times in the progress of the war tended to diminish the number, and the public attention and interest seemed to be completely diverted into other channels.

Under these trying difficulties in August, 1863, President McPhail resigned. The condition of the College became so alarming, and its friends so generally disheartened, that a special meeting of the Board of Trustees was called in Philadelphia, to "take into consideration the propriety of suspending operations under increasing embarrassments." As one of the results of this meeting, a committee was appointed to confer with Professors Coffin, March, and Coleman, with reference to the possibility of keeping the College in operation the following year. This conference had respect mainly to the compensation of these Professors; and it is worthy of record here, that these self-sacrificing men, to whom Lafayette owes so

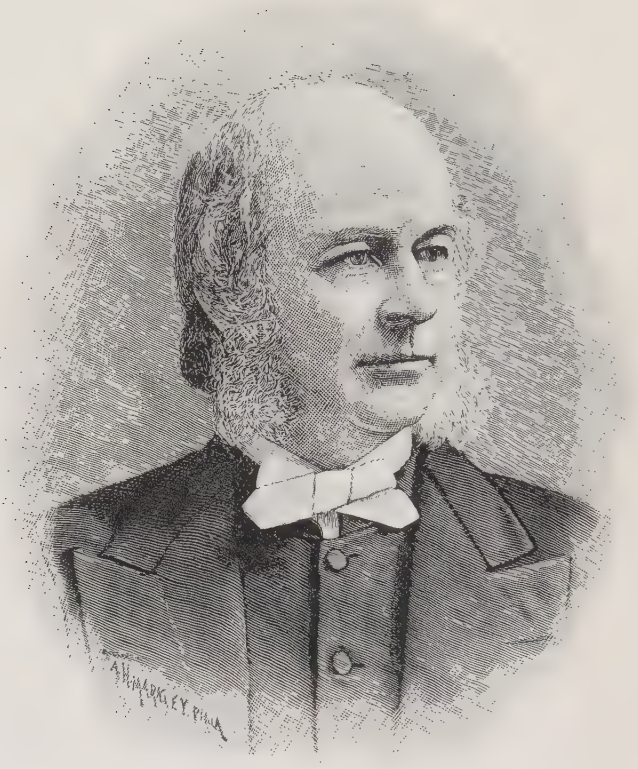
*The roll of honor shows the names of two hundred and twenty-six graduates, non-graduates, and under-graduates, who served in the military and naval service of the United States during the war. Of those in the army, six were General officers, seven Colonels, five Lieutenant-Colonels, eight Majors, twenty-nine Assistant Surgeons, fifteen Chaplains, twenty-three Captains, twenty-three Lieutenants, twenty-three non-commissioned officers, and sixty-seven privates. And in the navy, one Lieutenant Commander, one Professor of Mathematics, one Paymaster, two Assistant Surgeons, and one Volunteer Lieutenant.

Of the regular graduates living at the time and not yet beyond the military age, over twenty-six per cent. entered the service. The average percentage of the New England colleges is about twenty-three per cent., Yale leading them with twenty-five.

The above facts are gathered from the Commemorative Address delivered by Prof. Henry T. Lee (Major 4th N. Y. Artillery), July 24th, 1866.



WILLIAM C. CATTELL, D. D., LL. D.,

much, both in the efficiency of her daily work, and in her renown abroad, did not desert her in her extremity. The committee reported favorably to the Board. The College was to go on at least for another year. In other words, the Professors would keep it in operation at all hazards and take what the Board could give them in compensation.

PRESIDENT CATTELL.

It was at this critical juncture in the history that we find the Board turning their attention to one who had been a Professor in the institution, Rev. William C. Cattell,* to whom they gave a hearty call to return to Lafayette and fill the vacant Presidency. Dr. Cattell was at that time pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church at Harrisburg. His pastorate of three years was one of marked success and usefulness; an able and devoted preacher, a man of warm and sympathetic heart, he had won the love of all his people, who when he accepted the proffered Presidency, consented to his separation from them with the utmost reluctance, and only under the conviction that he was called to a higher work. This indeed has proved to be the case; but it was a work beset with great difficulties. Dr. Cattell was not ignorant of these, nor was he disheartened by them. He came to his new and enlarged sphere of labor with a strong faith in the ultimate success of the enterprise.

To his earnest zeal in the cause of education he added a knowledge of the ground, and a keen insight, which enabled him to see the wants of the age in the matter of the higher education. He knew that Lafayette College had a future before her, and a work to do, from which those to whom her interests were intrusted must by

* Rev. William Cassady Cattell, D. D., LL. D., was born at Salem, N. J., August 30, 1827. He graduated at the College of New Jersey in 1848, and pursued a four years' course in theology at Princeton, where he was Associate Principal of the Edgehill Academy from 1853 to 1855. He was ordained by the Presbytery of Newton in 1856. On the resignation of Rev. Dr. Burrowes, in the spring of 1855, he was called to the chair of Latin and Greek in Lafayette, which he resigned in August, 1860, to accept the pastorate of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church in Harrisburg, where his labors were crowned with success, and he was greatly beloved by his congregation. In 1863 he was elected President of Lafayette, which position he held for twenty years, until impaired health through overwork, obliged him to tender his resignation. During this long period of assiduous service, besides contributing continually and liberally of his means, he gave his personal labor for a merely nominal salary. Dr. Cattell is a member of numerous learned societies, a superior scholar, an accomplished and affable gentleman, of great energy of character and an excellent preacher. Of recent years he has accomplished a great work as Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Relief for Disabled Ministers. (Nevin's Encyclopedia.)

no means shrink. His efforts at the very outset were characterized by that energy, prudence and tact which always master difficulties, and which for him secured at once the hearty co-operation and confidence of the friends of the College.

President Cattell was inaugurated in the College Chapel, Tuesday afternoon, July 26th, 1864, in the presence of the Trustees, the Faculty and the students, a number of the members of Synod, Alumni, citizens of Easton, and other friends of the Institution. The occasion was one on which Lafayette felt a thrill of returning hope. Governor Pollock, President of the Board of Trustees, touched its key note in his admirable introductory address when he said :

"But the hour of darkness and gloom has passed ; and to-day, within her walls all is harmony and peace ; and at this hour, and in analogy with nature now robed in sunshine and smiling after the storm, the light of a genial sun now pouring down upon us through the riven and scattered clouds, Lafayette College stands revealed in the light of returning prosperity, and all without betokens favor, success and triumph !

"We have met to-day to witness the inauguration of one well-known and appreciated by you all ; and who has been honored by a most happy, cordial and unanimous election by the Synod and Board of Trustees. We present him to you as the scholar and the man—the highest style of man—the Christian gentleman, and one who combines in a remarkable degree, the quiet dignity of the Christian minister, the accomplishments of the scholar, and the no less important qualifications of an administrative officer."

A new vitality was at once infused, and new vigor characterized the work of the College, both in its inner life and in the more remote points of contact with the patronage and public. Nor was the new era inaugurated without more special indications of the divine favor. A work of grace among the students took place in 1864, which was perhaps the most remarkable of the great revivals that have characterized the recent history.* It seemed like the seal of God set anew upon the Institution.

PRESIDENT KNOX.

In 1883 Dr. Cattell in consequence of broken health felt compelled to resign the Presidency. His heart was in the work and his faith in the future of the College never failed, but the long and continuous strain of his twenty years of most enthusiastic service told at last, and he was obliged to seek needed rest under circumstances as free as possible from the anxieties of his great labor. The Board of Trustees accepted his resignation with great reluctance and felt no little perplexity when the task of choosing his successor came before them. Naturally they felt that the new President should be in hearty sympathy with the best features of the policy that had wrought such wonders of growth, and better still if he were entirely familiar with the aims and struggles and methods of the institution over which he was to preside.

* Scarcely a year passed during Dr. Cattell's administration without a religious awakening in the College, more or less widespread and powerful. Those of 1867, 1870, 1873 and 1876 were especially remarkable for the profound interest manifested by all the students, and the large numbers who made profession of a change of heart.

James H. Mason Knox, D. D., LL. D., * had been for nearly twenty years a member of the Board of Trustees, and as one of Dr. Cattell's most efficient helpers had been an important factor in the recent striking growth of the College. To him the Trustees turned with the offer of the Presidency. Dr. Knox was far from aspiring to such a position ; indeed he accepted it only with the utmost reluctance. No one was more familiar than he with the great work of his predecessor, and no one knew better than he what gifts of experience, tact, and genialty of temperament Dr. Cattell had brought to its performance ; but the cordial unanimity of the Board overcame his reluctance, and brought the work before him as one to which he was amply called.

Dr. Knox took his place as President of the Faculty in November 1883, and at the following Commencement in June, 1884, delivered his inaugural address in Pardee Hall, on which occasion most appropriate and cordial addresses of welcome were delivered to him, for the Trustees by Mr. Ario Pardee, for the Faculty by Prof. Addison Ballard, and in behalf of the Alumni by Hon. Robert E. James, of the class of 1869.

Obviously the time has not yet come for the verdict of history upon Dr. Knox's labors in this new field, for the work is not yet finished. This much however may be said—he has taken his place and performed his part thus far with quiet dignity and prudence, and in a manner to commend him to the confidence and esteem of his colleagues, of the students, and of all friends of the College. The noble task so auspiciously begun, and so energetically pursued by Dr. Cattell, has been continued by Dr. Knox, and with the same earnest efforts to enlarge the endowment and increase the efficiency of the institution.

*Rev. James Hall Mason Knox, D. D., LL. D., was born in New York City. His father, Rev. Dr. John Knox, was for more than forty years senior pastor of the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church of that city, and his mother was the eldest daughter of the Rev. Dr. John M. Mason. He graduated at Columbia College in 1841, and then took a full course of Theological study in the Seminary of the Reformed Dutch Church at New Brunswick, N. J. He was pastor of the Presbyterian Church in German Valley, N. J., for five years, when he was called to Easton, to assume the charge of the newly organized Reformed Dutch Church, where he remained two years. He was then called to Germantown, where he was for sixteen years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, whence he was transferred to Bristol, where his pastorate of ten years was terminated by his call to the Presidency of Lafayette. He has been connected with many of the boards and committees of the church. He received from his Alma Mater the degree of D. D. in 1861, and LL. D. in 1885.

We may now turn to note briefly the external features of Lafayette's growth during the last twenty-five years.

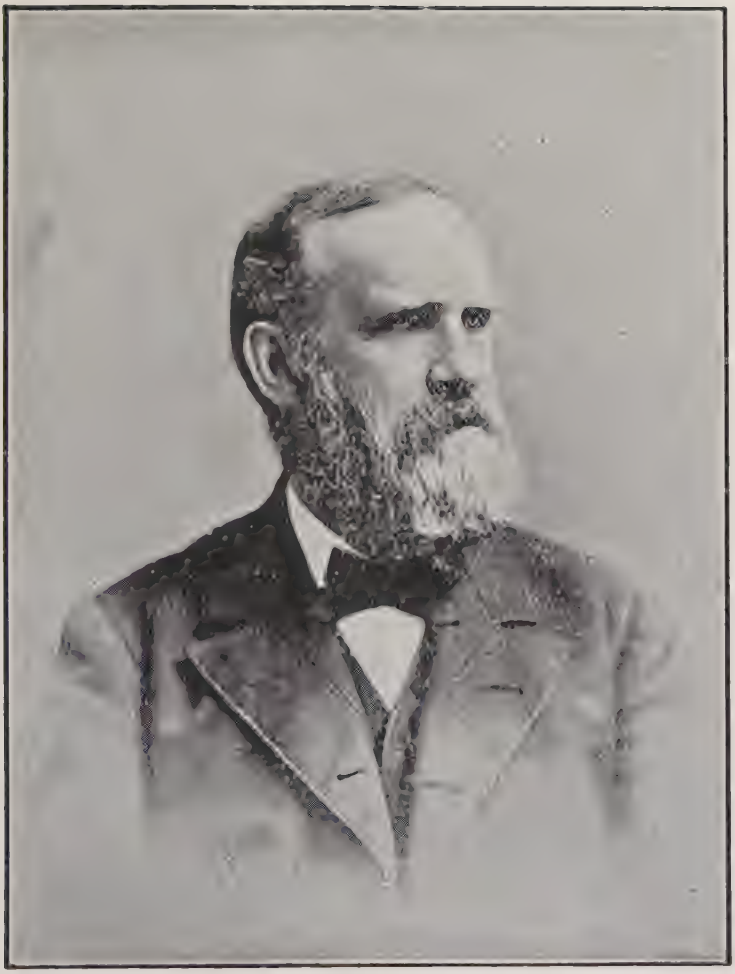
President Cattell devoted the vigor of his middle life to the task of building up the College, and with full heart and strong arm, with a strength indeed that grew with growing opportunities, pushed on the important work that lay before him. The world will read in the work itself the fittest praise of the energy and ability of the man whose best work after all will not be recorded in the history of great buildings, of swelling endowments and new courses of study, but in the hearts and lives of the hundreds of young men whose characters were moulded under his personal influence. These will never forget the kind-hearted President, endeared to them alike as a faithful friend, a wise counselor and an eminent example of a life devoted with Christian fidelity to a great and good work.

Under his administration Lafayette rose to commanding eminence among the colleges of the land, enlarging her work by the introduction of departments of instruction, widely different in specific scope and aim, yet brought into stimulating contact and so into the unity of a harmonious progress.

STUDENTS.

As to the number of students, the surest test of substantial progress, there has been a steady and rapid advance. The successive annual reports of the Faculty since 1863, show the following numbers in attendance upon the regular College classes. The College has no preparatory department.

In 1863, 39.	1872, 222.	1881, 290.
1864, 46.	1873, 243.	1882, 302.
1865, 51.	1874, 280.	1883, 289.
1866, 65.	1875, 319.	1884, 289.
1867, 101.	1876, 335.	1885, 290.
1868, 128.	1877, 296.	1886, 251.
1869, 145.	1878, 276.	1887, 247.
1870, 188.	1879, 272.	1888, 282.
1871, 233.	1880, 265.	1889, 309.



JAMES H. MASON KNOX, D D., LL. D.

PRESIDENT, 1883—1890.

The long stress of hard times, beginning in 1878, left its mark, it will be seen, upon the attendance of students.

THE FACULTY.*

In 1863–64 the Faculy consisted of nine members. The addition of new departments of study, and the large increase of students have made it necessary to secure a much larger corps of instructors. In 1865–66 the number was sixteen; at the present time it is twenty-six.

RECITATIONS AND LECTURES.

There has been a corresponding increase in the amount of actual class-room work. From 1859 to 1865 there were given annually in the four classes 2070 recitations and lectures. In 1865-66, when the Scientific Department was added, more than half the exercises of the new course were coincident with those of the old, 913 were not so, making the total for that year 2983. The annual number of recitations and lectures at the present time, not including the working sections, or the graduate courses, is 9263.

This large increase has been caused partly by additions to the curriculum, but mainly by the division and sub-division of large classes. The policy of hearing classes in sections so small that each student shall be sure of daily drill is strictly adhered to, and will account in some measure for the exact and thorough character of the work done at this College. The Freshman class, for example, in Mathematics recites this term in four sections. The classical Freshmen recite in two sections, each in Greek and Latin, and the scientific Freshmen in three, each in French and German. The advantage of thus dividing into sections of from twelve to twenty men, is well known to all thorough teachers ; besides the benefit of the actual recitation, the

* Some mention has already been made of the notable eminent men who were identified with the Faculty in the earlier times. It should also be added that the friends of the College feel a just pride in the fidelity and talent of those who now compose it. We who, as students, have enjoyed the advantages of their faithful instruction, would gladly accord them much more than this mere passing notice. Dr. Lyman Coleman, our late venerable Professor of Latin, the friend of Neander, the ripe Biblical and classical scholar, whose books are known and used alike in this country and in England ; Dr. Traill Green, by whose efficient labors, extending through forty years, the department of Chemistry has reached its present renown : Dr. Francis A. March, ranked among the leading philologists of the age, and Dr Thomas C. Porter, recognized as authority along with the leading naturalists of our time ; these are well known : nor should it be forgotten that among the younger professors, there are not a few who, already eminent as instructors, are winning their way to scholarly distinction in their several departments.

student has the incitement of knowing beforehand that he will be called upon to recite at every exercise, and the instructor is better able to ascertain the progress and the particular needs of each member of the division.

THE COLLEGE GROUNDS.

The college grounds have been enlarged by successive purchases, to include about thirty-three acres, most of which has been greatly improved within the past few years. The work, carried on according to the plans of Mr. Donald G. Mitchell, ("Ik Marvel") and under the supervision of Mr. S. L. Fisler, A. M., (class of 1861), has consisted of grading, terracing, ornamental planting, and the laying out and construction of walks, drives, etc., and is so far completed that the campus already presents a picture of rare beauty. This is not, of course, a work of mere aimless adornment, but is carried on under the deliberate recognition of the educational influences of art. The authorities regard it as a matter of great importance, that the surroundings of young men, while in the process of education, should be such as to engage the mind, not only with the most pleasing aspects of nature, but also with the finer forms of beauty into which nature may be wrought by the skillful touch of man. The students are thus brought under the refining influences of a constant æsthetic culture.

THE NEW BUILDINGS.

The most noticeable feature of the external growth, however, is seen in the buildings. Twelve years ago, the original edifice and the small building to the west of it, built by Dr. Junkin for the Model school, were the only structures. Since that time these have been thoroughly renovated and others added. The old College (now South College) has been so completely transformed as to appear scarcely the same building. The old hip-roof has been replaced by a neat mansard, and the east and west wings added.

The East Wing contains Eastonian Hall, which is fitted up as a reading-room, and is supplied with the best newspapers and periodicals of America, England, France, and Germany. Dictionaries, Cyclopædias, and other works of reference belonging to the Library, are also placed in this room. It occupies the first floor and the second story in galleries, making a spacious, light, and airy hall. It is adorned with literary treasures and portraits of honored benefactors and officers of the college. Among these collections is a Papyrus Scroll five feet long, from a mummy at Thebes, with a hieratic inscription pronounced by Seyffarth the finest he has seen, presented by Hon. John W. Garrett, of Baltimore. There is also a full length portrait of Lafayette, painted by Healey at the Chateau La Grange from Ary Sheffer's famous painting, and presented by Dr. Thomas W. Evans, of Paris. Above are the President's room and three lecture halls. This wing is 35 by 66½ feet, and is connected with the main building by a bell tower 80 feet in height. The entire cost was $23,400.

The West Wing is 44 by 84 feet in size, and like the East Wing is of brick, rough-cast, trimmed with brown stone quoins and water table. The new chapel occupies the first floor, a double story, 26 feet in height, above which are the Latin room and private rooms of Professor Owen and the lecture room of Professor F. A. March, Jr.

The clock tower, surmounted by a spire, is 125 feet in height, and forms the connection between this wing and the main building. The whole cost was $33,800.

The Model School Building (afterwards known as West College) has also been refitted, the first floor as the offices of the Treasurer and Registrar and the College Archives, and the second floor as the Lecture-room for Prof. March, with adjoining room as a private study.

A short distance south-east of South College stands JENKS CHEMICAL HALL. It is a T shaped structure of blue limestone, two-stories, with mansard roof, sixty-four feet front and seventy-five in depth. It was originally designed for the Chemical Department in 1865, and is fitted up with laboratories, lecture-room, and cabinet. The first floor contains a recitation room and small laboratories for sections; the second floor, a large lecture-room and apartments for apparatus and professors' study; and the third the stock-room and the rooms for Quantitative Analysis. It was erected at a cost of $32,000.

The ASTRONOMICAL OBSERVATORY, north of Jenks Hall, and of the same material, is the gift of Dr. Traill Green, and was erected at a cost of $15,000. It consists of a Tower and two Transit-rooms, with lecture-room attached. It is fitted up with a revolving dome and two telescopes, a transit instrument, and other apparatus for the observation of astronomical facts, and for the thorough study of Astronomy.

By far the finest structure, however, on the grounds is PARDEE HALL. This magnificent building stands on the central plateau of the campus, and was erected and equipped for the uses of the Scientific Department by its munificent founder Mr. Pardee, at a cost of nearly $300,000.

The building, begun in 1871, was completed in 1873, and on the 21st of October of that year, was formally handed over with its scientific equipment to the Trustees, in the presence of His Excellency, Governor Hartranft; the State Superintendent of Education, Hon. J. P. Wickersham, LL. D.; the Synod of Philadelphia, and a great assemblage. The day was observed as a general holiday in Easton, South Easton, and Phillipsburg, and thousands of the people participated in the festivities of the occasion. Professor R. W. Raymond, at that time a member of the College Faculty, delivered the oration of the morning in the Auditorium, after which a collation was served in the building. In the afternoon and evening there were meetings, parades, and informal receptions, with many enthusiastic addresses of congratulation.

PARDEE HALL.

It consists of one centre building five stories in height, fifty-three feet front, and eighty-three feet deep, and two lateral wings, one on each side of the centre building, measuring sixty-one feet in length and thirty-one in width; four stories in height, including a mansard roof, the whole terminating in two cross wings, forty-two feet front and eighty-four feet deep, and four stories in height. The entire length of front, in a straight line, is two hundred and fifty-six feet. The material is the Trenton brown stone, with trimming of the light Ohio sand stone. It is heated throughout by steam and lighted by gas.

On the evening of June 4, 1879, this magnificent structure took fire from the chemical laboratory in the fourth floor, and in spite of the heroic efforts of Easton's fire department, at midnight was a heap of smoking ruins. Universal grief was manifested at this great calamity to the College, and the citizens of Easton were especially prompt in offers of assistance to replace the building. It had, however, been well insured, and from the fund so provided Pardee Hall was soon replaced, externally the exact counterpart of the first, but with many changes and improvements in the arrangements within, suggested by eight years of use.

The "reopening" on November 30, 1880, was attended with ceremonies more imposing if possible than those of the original dedication had been. Mr. Hayes, the President of the United States, was in attendance with a distinguished party, including R. P. Hayes, his son; Hon. Alexander Ramsey, Secretary of War; Hon. Horace Maynard, Postmaster General ; Gen. W. T. Sherman ; Hon. A. D. Hazen, Assistant Postmaster-General ; Hon. John Jameson, Superintendent of Railway Mail Service ; Hon. John Eaton, United States Commissioner of Education, and President Gilman of Johns Hopkins University. Governor Hoyt was also present, and many other distinguished guests, with a great assemblage from the vicinity. Professor Francis A. March, LL. D., delivered the oration, and the entire day and evening were spent, as before, in banquets, parades, receptions, and gratulatory addresses.

The centre building contains the Mathematical room of the students in Civil Engineering, the Hall of the Natural History Department, two Professors' studies and the Auditorium.

The west lateral wing is devoted to the collections in Natural History, the Ward Library, the Hall of the Washington Literary Society, and the Drawing room of the Mining Engineers.

The west transverse wing contains the Natural History class-room, the Botanical Laboratory, the Herbarium (containing the most complete Flora of Pennsylvania in existence), and the study of the Professor of Natural History, the Modern Language class-room, the Rhetorical class-room, the Library of the Washington Literary Society, and the class-room of the Mining Engineers.

In the east lateral wing is the collection of Northern Antiquities, Swedish iron ore, etc. Immediately above is the large Laboratory for Physical research, communicating with the suite of rooms assigned to the Department of Natural Philosophy. On the third and fourth floors are the Hall of the Franklin Literary Society, and the Civil Engineering Drawing room.

The Department of Physics occupies the basement and the entire first and second stories of the east transverse wing, together with the second story of the lateral wing, making, it is believed, accommodations for this important department scarcely equaled in any other American College. The basement contains gas-holders, battery-room, etc. Repair-shops, with engine, lathes, etc., and the dark room for photometry, occupy the first floor. The south portion of the second story contains the Lecture-room with raised circular seats and fitted up with the most approved modern appliances. In the rear is the Hall of the Society of Physics and Engineering. The third and fourth floors contain class-rooms for the students in Civil Engineering, opening into their large Drawing-room, as in the west wing for the Mining Engineers ; also private Laboratories, rooms for apparatus, models, etc., and for special students in Steam Engineering.

In determining what rooms were needed and the best arrangement of them, similar buildings in Europe, as well as in this country, were carefully studied, and liberal provision has been made in all the departments of instruction for every aid which has been devised for the most thorough and attractive teaching, and also for the prosecution of original researches.

Provision has been made in part for the accommodation of the large number of students by the erection of "Students' Homes." Six of these occupy the north campus, five of them bearing the names of those by whose liberality the college was enabled to provide them. They are in their order from west to east, Blair Hall, Newkirk Hall, McKeen Hall, Martien Hall, Powel Hall, and East Hall. Except McKeen Hall, which has brown stone quoins and window trimmings, with porch, ornamental cornice, and a balustrade around the entire roof, they are plain brick buildings, fitted up in suites of rooms for the occupancy of students, and for the residence of a family with whom the students may board, if they so desire.

PHYSICAL CULTURE AND THE GYMNASIUM.

The subject of Physical Culture, challenging attention through the medium of "athletic sports," has established for itself an abiding place in the life, and is destined to secure, ere long, recognition in the curriculum of all Colleges of higher grade.

The evils incident to a voluntary, undirected system of exercise, forced themselves upon the attention of the College authorities until they saw the necessity of properly regulating it, in the interest of the great and desirable end which it is intended to conserve. The Trustees of Lafayette felt the need of this long before it was in their power to meet it. In 1884 through the liberality of a few friends, a Gymnasium was built adequate to every need. The building is of brick, 84 by 45 feet, tasteful in design, very light, well warmed and ventilated, fitted up with dressing and bathing rooms, supplied with hot and cold water, and thoroughly furnished with the best modern apparatus.

With these appliances for ensuring it, the Trustees have added Physical Culture to the regular curriculum of the College. Each student upon entering, receives a thorough examination by the Medical Director of Physical Training, who is an educated physician. Hereditary, organic or functional defects, and special weakness, if any, are noted, and the kind and amount of exercise adapted to each case is prescribed. Each student is required to attend the prescribed exercises of the Gymnasium, with the same regularity that he does the instruction of the class room, and it is confidently expected, that a sound mind in a vigorous body, will henceforth be the resultant of a college course at Lafayette.

There have also been erected on the college grounds, nine houses designed for the residence of Professors, and those previously built have been improved and enlarged.

THE FUNDS OF THE COLLEGE.

The citizens of Easton at their first meeting in 1824, to take some definite steps towards the establishment of the College, appointed a Committee to draft a memorial to the Legislature for aid, but the account I have already given shows that their expectations from this quarter were not fully realized, and the College from the start was mainly dependent upon the contributions of its friends. These sums were generally small. In the first published list of contributors (1834), the sums range from several contributions of fifty cents to one of five hundred dollars. Seventy were below five dollars. The aggregate amounts to $5,103, of which the citizens of Easton furnished more than two-thirds. The most generous donors to the College in its early history were Col. Thomas McKeen and James M. Porter of Easton, and James Lenox of New York City.

The appeals made to the Legislature were based mainly upon the necessity for the State making some provision for the education of teachers, and all the aid the College ever received from this source seems to have been due to this part of its work, in which, as I have already observed (see page 22), Lafayette College anticipated the present system of State Normal Schools. To prepare the student for "teaching as his ultimate employment for life," was an object the Trustees had much at heart, and their report in 1834 asks the significant question, "Will the day never come when the profession of teachers will be both honorable and profitable, and this class in our colleges be filled with the first men in our land?" The minutes of the Board, however, mention but one appropriation received from the State. This is at their meeting April 4th, 1834, where they acknowledged the warrant of "Gov. Wolf for the sum of $4,000." The report for that year refers to an additional grant promised by the Legislature for "2,000 a year for four years," but whether these amounts were paid, the Treasurer's books, which are incomplete for these years, do not inform us.

It is a remarkable fact that Lafayette College in all its history has never received a dollar by a direct bequest. In 1871 it received a residuary or revisionary bequest of $1,716 from the estate of John Beveridge, one of the Trustees. The College was also made the residuary legatee by one of the Alumni, H. D. T. Kerr (class of 1856), but the estate was exhausted before the specific bequests were paid, so that during the last fifty years, a period fruitful in bequests to our higher institutions of learning, Lafayette College has received only the above-mentioned sum, less than eighteen hundred dollars!

As a part of the financial history of the College, the following summary of the Treasurer's books, from 1850 to 1864, prepared with great labor by Prof. J. H. Coffin, and embracing the period from the time the College became connected with the Synod until the close of President McPhail's administration,* will be not without interest to the friends of the College.

*Dr. McLean, the first President of the College nominated by the Synod, was elected October 18th, 1850; Dr. McPhail, October 27th, 1857; Dr. Cattell, October 27th, 1863, and Dr. Knox, October, 1883.

According to estimates submitted by President McPhail, at his resignation in the fall of 1863, the total value of the College property, including grounds, buildings, libraries, apparatus, invested funds, and outstanding subscriptions, was $88,666, and the income from the sources was less than $4,000.

According to the Treasurer's estimate, submitted at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees, the total value of the College property is now $817,414.75, distributed as follows :

I.—Non-productive Investments.

1. Buildings and grounds	$431,413 87
2. Apparatus	87,754 67
3. Libraries and Scientific Collections	40,266 83
Total	$559,435 37

II.—Productive Investments.

1. Dormitories and Students' Homes	$67,726 37
2. Houses for Professors	69,049 29
3. Amount of invested funds, after deducting the entire indebtedness of the College	121,203 72
Total	$257,979 38

It will be seen by this statement that the College possesses its magnificent buildings and grounds, its extensive and valuable libraries, apparatus, scientific collections, etc., clear of all incumbrances, and that it has in addition over $250,000 of productive funds, yielding an annual income of about $16,000.*

* It should, however, be known to all the friends of the College that this sum, added to the fees from the students, is very far from being sufficient to meet the current expenses of the College. The great and rapid increase in the resources of the Institution has created a very general impression that Lafayette College is immensely rich. It is rich, perhaps beyond the fondest expectations of its founders and early friends ; but in the great and wide field it now occupies, the expenditures, even upon the most economical basis, are far beyond even its large income. The various departments of instruction at Lafayette, with the Post-Graduate, Special and Elective Courses of study, and the necessity, on account of the large number of students, for sub-dividing the classes in sections small enough to ensure thorough drill in the daily recitations, render a large body of professors an absolute necessity. Last year the Faculty consisted of twenty six instructors. It has been the policy of the Board of Trustees to maintain in all the departments a complete and effective corps of instructors, notwithstanding the large annual deficit which has existed for some years past, and which has been made up annually by special contributions from the friends of the College, mainly from the Trustees themselves. This annual deficit, however, is regarded as a serious hindrance to the further development of the College It cannot be reduced by diminishing the number of Professors without seriously crippling the thoroughness and efficiency of the instruction ; nor can the salaries of the professors be lowered, as they are already upon a scale of extreme economy, the salary of the senior professors

In the history of this remarkable progress we find conspicuous examples of most wise and far-seeing munificence. Among those who have nobly aided in this work may be mentioned the following gentlemen, who, besides minor benefactions, have endowed professorships in the sum of $30,000: William Adamson, of Philadelphia; Thomas Beaver, of Danville; George B. Markle, of Philadelphia; and John Welles Hollenback, of Wilkes-Barre. The Presidential chair was endowed in 1881 in the sum of $40,000 by Hon. John I. Blair, who subsequently purchased from Dr. Cattell his private residence, and presented it to the college as the permanent home of the President. He also, in 1867, gave to the College the valuable land on which the Students' Homes were erected, making the total of his donations $75,000.†

being (in addition to house rent) only $1,600. Moreover, it is certain that the deficit will increase with the increasing number of students, as the tuition fees in all colleges are below the cost of instruction. The Trustees have therefore resolved to pursue the only course left for them and appeal to the friends of the College for a large increase of the permanent endowment. The noble benefactions already made to the College have established it upon so firm and broad a basis that those to whom God has given wealth, and who feel an interest in Christian education, have here an inviting field for investments that are sure to yield great and growing results in the good cause. The Trustees adopted the following minute, and it is hoped that the College may share liberally in the large gifts annually made by wealthy people to the cause of education, and thus relieved from the necessity of providing year by year for a large deficit, may be free to expand in certain directions where improvements are still needed:

"1st. The Board of Trustees gratefully recognize the increasing prosperity of the College. They witness with pleasure the large number of students upon its rolls, and the evidences of marked efficiency, not only in the departments of instruction, but in the administration of all its affairs.

"2d. In view of the large expenditures which have been necessary to bring the College to its present eminent position among the leading institutions of the land, it is essential that there should be careful economy in all its disbursements, and that the work of instruction should be divided among the members of the Faculty in such equable manner that the number of professors be reduced to the lowest point consistent with the proper working of the several departments; but the Trustees, after a full examination of all the resources and the necessary expenditures, are also of the opinion that, to maintain the College in its present efficiency, an addition to its present endowment of at least five hundred thousand dollars in productive funds, is absolutely necessary.

"3d. The Trustees of the College, therefore, recognizing the great labors and success of President Cattell in securing funds for the endowment, as well as his distinguished and successful administration of the affairs of the College, entitling him to the thanks of all friends of Christian education, would respectfully request him to undertake this great additional work, pledging to him their fullest confidence and sympathy, and every aid which it may be in their power to bestow."

† Hon. John I. Blair was born near Belvidere, N. J., August 23, 1802. He was the third of ten children. At the age of eleven he entered a store and became successful as a merchant, 1823–63; established iron works, 1834-46; extensive railroad builder from 1849 to 1889, especially in the northwest. Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey in 1876. He has given to Blair Hall, at Blairstown, N. J., in buildings and vested funds nearly four hundred thousand dollars.

The citizens of Easton contributed, in 1872, $22,624, to complete the east wing of South College, and in 1872, $4,700, towards the new chapel, to which also Mrs. W. C. Ferriday and Mrs. Ellen J. Welles, (Wyalusing, Pa.,) contributed each $5,000 ; * Dr. Traill Green erected and furnished the astronomical observatory. The Treasurer's books, among other contributions to the funds of the College, show the following : John A. Brown, $20,000 ; Charles O. Baird, $16,000 ; F. Marquand's estate, $17,500 ; William E. Dodge and Joseph H. Scranton, each $15,000 ; Barton H. Jenks, Thomas L. McKeen and Mrs. William C. Cattell, each $10,000 ; Selden T. Scranton, $7,500 ; Alfred Martien and Benjamin G. Clarke, each $6,000 ; Morris Patterson, Rev. Matthew Newkirk, John Taylor Johnston, Alexander Whilldin, Thomas Dickson, G. Dawson Coleman and Matthew Baird, each $5,000.

But it remains to mention the most munificent benefactor of the College, one, in fact, to whose gifts and wise counsels the College really owes so largely, not only its present efficiency, but its very existence. In 1865, when the College was again struggling for its life, Mr. Ario Pardee, of Hazleton, Pennsylvania, gave President Cattell his check for $20,000 ! At the time this donation was made, it was the largest sum given by any one man to any educational institution in Pennsylvania. This, however, was but the beginning of his noble benefactions, which, by successive donations as the needs of the College enlarged, have amounted to half a million of dollars ! Such princely gifts to the cause of education by one actively engaged in business life, have been rare indeed, and Mr. Pardee's name is not only enshrined in the hearts of all the sons of the College, and of all the friends of education, but it must ever be honored by all men who

* The efforts made by the Synod of Philadelphia to raise funds for the College chapel by collections throughout the churches within its bounds, were not attended with much success. In his speech before the Synod in 1870 (previously referred to), President Cattell says :

" When the Synod met at Easton, four years ago, the committee to whom this subject was referred made an earnest appeal that 'some scheme be devised by which the entire Synod will unite in erecting among the new buildings now crowning College Hill a Memorial Chapel;' and upon their report, it was resolved unanimously, 'that on the day of prayer for schools and colleges, or the week following, a collection be taken up in all the churches within our bounds for the purpose of commencing a fund for the building of a College chapel.' At the meeting next year in Lancaster, it was found that this effort had resulted in securing the sum of $360.21. That year, still stronger resolutions were passed, and a special committee of one minister from each Presbytery was appointed to carry out the plan. The second and last effort, after deducting the expenses, resulted in the additional sum of $320.60 !"

can appreciate such noble and unselfish use of wealth. It was well said by Dr. Raymond, at the dedication of Pardee Hall, "Nothing is more beautiful than the spectacle of wealth wielded with the strong hand and generous heart; of skill and sagacity brought to bear upon the question how to benefit society. Such wealth breeds no danger to the community, and ought never to rouse the faintest sigh of envy. Every poor man in Pennsylvania has reason to be glad and give thanks to-day that Ario Pardee is rich."

LIBRARY.

The library was founded in 1832, by contributions of books from the friends of the College, and it grew slowly by gifts and small purchases. In 1865, the whole number of volumes reported was only 2,645. A fee of $1.00 a term for the increase of the library, and afterwards of $2.00 a term for the reading-room and library has since been paid by each student, and the fees for matriculation and graduation have also in part been appropriated to the same object. The income from these sources is now somewhat more than $2,000 a year. The librarian last year reported the addition of 989 volumes, of which 797 were bought for $2,007.16.

This income has been expended almost wholly in books immediately connected with the studies of the course, with a view to buying all the working books needed for original investigation in the special direction in which each professor has wished to push his work. It does not, therefore, add rapidly to the number of volumes, but in certain specialties it has served to accumulate one of the best working libraries in the country. The departments in which it is best are,

Anglo-Saxon, Early French, Early and Dialectic English.
Christian Greek and Latin.
American History.
Natural History.
Chemistry and Mining.

Large donations of books have been received, among which may be mentioned those from Rev. David Bishop, at the founding of the library; from Hon. T. G. Clemson, a set of the Annales des Mines and French works of science; from Edwin Miller and Ferdinand de Lesseps, engineering works; from Dr. John Curwen, works in Natural History and Classical Antiquities. The class of 1871 established a fund for the purchase of Early English Texts. The heirs of C. L. Ward, Esq., of Towanda, presented to the College his well-known library of about ten thousand choice volumes of general literature, his law library and all the books and pamphlets of his American historical collection, with his extensive collections of autographs, engravings and curiosities. The Hon. Joseph Casey has presented valuable series of American Annals and State Papers, and of Legal and Congressional Reports. Mr. Benjamin Douglass has made a donation for the department of Christian Greek and Latin, from which about one thousand dollars have been expended in the purchase of the best working editions of such authors and of critical apparatus for this study. Messrs. R. L. and A. Stuart have also made valuable gifts to this department.

About 6,000 volumes, consisting of the Dictionaries, Cyclopædias, Historical and Scientific Serials and other works of reference or frequent use, belonging to the library, are displayed in cases in the reading room of the College. These books are kept accessible to all members of College daily, Sundays excepted, for consultation during study hours and general reading out of study hours.

Adequate provision has not yet been made for the proper display and use of the rest of the books. The whole number of volumes is now about 16,000, scattered through different College buildings, and a new building for the library is one of the most pressing needs of the College.

The Washington and Franklin Literary Societies have, in addition, well selected libraries aggregating about 6,000 volumes.

THE CURRICULUM.

The historical development of the curriculum shows important changes in the old classical course, arising mainly from the introduction of the Modern Languages and Natural Sciences.*

The records do not furnish the material for as complete an analysis with respect to the proportional distribution of studies as might be desired. The following summaries, however, will show the number of recitations allotted to each of the main departments of study at different periods. The results are also expressed in percentages of the whole time.

The Biblical studies consisted of History and Antiquities, Sacred Geography, the Greek Testament, Butler's Analogy and the Standards of the Church. It was during this period that the College became connected with the Synod of Philadelphia; previously the religious studies had been carried on by means of Sabbath Bible-classes and lectures.

During this period, in 1857–'58, the College year was divided into three terms. In 1856–'57, Trench on the Study of Words was introduced; in 1857–'58, Fowler's English Language, Anglo-Saxon and Milton's Paradise Lost. Here begins the philological study of English. It is not distinguished, however, in the above table nor in the following one from the General English Studies. French and German were also introduced this year. In 1858–'59, Shakespeare (Julius Cæsar) was first studied, in the third term Junior class.

Hebrew, Blackstone, Archæology of Literature and Chemistry are elective in the Senior year, with other studies, and in the case of students who elect them, modify the above results in Mathematics, Greek and Modern Languages.

In addition to the Outlines of History, particular periods in Grecian, Roman, English, and American history are worked up along with the reading of representative authors, as Livy, Tacitus, Demosthenes, Shakespeare, etc. More than three hundred recitations of the course are thus available as a means of special instruction in history.

Classical Geography, Greek and Latin Composition and Grecian and Roman Antiquities come in as "side studies," and are referred in the above analysis to those branches to which they are most akin.

SCIENTIFIC COLLECTIONS.

These are extensive and valuable, and are rapidly increasing from year to year by gifts from societies and individual donors, and by special appropriations in addition to the fees for registration and matriculation.

Among the most valuable of the collections may be mentioned the extensive Herbarium, collected mainly by Prof. Porter and his assistants during thirty years of enthusiastic labor; it is specially rich in Mosses, and is believed to contain the most complete Flora of Pennsylvania in existence; the series of Ward's celebrated casts, illustrating Geology and Palæontology, together with the specimens purchased for the College by Prof. Hitchcock in Europe; the valuable collection of Coal Fossils presented by the Scientific Association of Pottsville, and the Models of the coal region made and presented to the College by P. W. Shaefer, Esq.; the splendid Mineralogical collections of Dr. E. R. Beadle, of Philadelphia, and of Jacob Wagener and Dr. Joseph K. Swift, of Easton; also the Janeway collection, and Prof. S. J. Coffin's collection of Silver Ores; the collection of Northern Antiquities, purchased by Dr. Beadle in Denmark; and the complete collection of Swedish Iron Ores, with the products of their reduction, presented by the Jern Kontaret of Sweden.

The apparatus in the Department of Physics and Applied Mechanics, the instruments used in the Departments of Astronomy and Engineering, and the scientific equipment of the numerous and extensive laboratories, fairly meet the demands of advanced instruction in these Departments; a special feature, however, is the series of one thousand three hundred and twenty-two Wall Charts, executed at the College by Mr. G. Garnier, under the direction of the Professors in the Departments of Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Applied Mechanics, Metallurgy, Engineering, and Natural History. In addition to Schrœder's Models in Descriptive Geometry, there are valuable models in Machine Drawing, Stone Cutting, Crystallography and Architecture.

JAMES HENRY COFFIN, LL. D.,

PROFESSOR, 1846—1873.

THE PRESENT ORGANIZATION

—AND—

COURSES OF STUDY.

The old standard curriculum of under-graduate studies has been adhered to throughout with a judicious regard for the interests of classical culture. Changes have occurred, it is true, and important additions have been made to this course, but only such as have seemed necessary in view of the just demands of changing times.

In her recent remarkable growth, however, Lafayette has far exceeded the limits of this single course, and has indeed, by her various Schools or Departments of Instruction, advanced to the rank of a University. The schedules now offer seven distinct courses of study, leading to degrees, as follows :

I.—THE CLASSICAL COURSE.

The graduates in this course receive the usual degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The main characteristics of this course may be seen by reference to the historical outline of it in the foregoing pages. In its present relation to the other departments, it is kept in its integrity, and left free to its own development. It is, however, regarded as embodying the standard means of liberal training, and is therefore the course to which the others conform, as far is consistent with their specific aim, in their general spirit and design. It is fully equal in organization and thoroughness to the under-graduate course of our best Colleges, and affords the amplest facilities for the study of the Ancient Languages.

II.—THE GENERAL SCIENTIFIC COURSE.

Graduates receive the degree of Bachelor of Science; or, for those taking the elective course in Latin, Bachelor of Philosophy.

This course is parallel with the Classical Course of the College, except that the Philological Study of the English and other Modern Languages takes the place of the Ancient Languages. It is designed, therefore, for those who wish to study the Natural Sciences, Mathematics, Modern Languages and Literature, History, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Rhetoric and Logic, as a substantial basis of knowledge and scholarly culture, and who would be glad to enjoy the cultivation and learned habits and associations of College life, but who will not study Greek and Latin. The course is further discussed on page 62 of this book.

III.—THE COURSE IN CIVIL ENGINEERING.

Graduates receive the degree of Civil Engineer.

This course is designed to give professional preparation for the location, construction and superintendence of railways, canals and other public works; the trigonometrical and topographical surveys of States, counties, etc.; the surveys of rivers, lakes, harbors, etc.; and the direction of their improvement; the design, construction and use of steam engines and other motors, and of mechanics in general; and the construction of geometrical, topographical and machine drawings.

IV.—THE COURSE IN MINING AND METALLURGY.

Graduates receive the degree of Mining Engineer.

This course offers the means of special preparation for exploring undeveloped mineral resources, and for taking charge of mining and metallurgical works. It includes instruction in Engineering as connected with the survey and construction of mines, with the construction and adjustment of machines, and with machine drawings; also, instruction in Chemistry and Assaying as applied to the manipulations of ores and other minerals.

V.—THE COURSE IN CHEMISTRY.

Graduates receive the degree of Analytical Chemist. This course includes text-book study, lectures and laboratory practice, every facility for which is found in the extensive laboratories of the Jenks Chemical Hall. Particular atention is given to the Chemistry of Agriculture, Medicine, Metallurgy and the Manufacturing Processes.

VI.—THE COURSE IN ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

This course was established in 1889, and is similar in its requirements to the engineering courses named above.

VII.—POST-GRADUATE COURSES

Designed for graduates of Colleges or Scientific Schools, and others having suitable preparation. Such persons may pursue advanced studies in any Department, under the direction and instruction of the Professor in that Department, and may have use of the laboratories, apparatus, collections and libraries of the College while prosecuting their researches. Those who complete a three years' course in these post-graduate studies receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

VIII.—THE STUDY OF LAW.

It appears from the records that a Law School in connection with the College was a feature of the plan, cherished by the authorities even from the first; and so early as 1841, and for several years thereafter, the name of Hon. James M. Porter appears in the catalogues as "Professor of Jurisprudence." In the enumeration of students also during that period, several are set down from year to year as "Law Students." Several years later, about 1850, Hon. Washington McCartney, who was also connected with the College, carried on a Law School in Easton for several years with much success.

Recently the Alumni and friends of the College have again felt the need of such a department, and in 1875 the authorities established the Law course. Under most promising auspices it was formally opened in the auditorium of Pardee Hall, October 6th, at which time an inaugural address was delivered by the Dean of the Faculty, Hon. W. S. Kirkpatrick, formerly President Judge of the III Judicial District of Pennsylvania, and now Attorney General of the State. The following Faculty of the department was announced:

Rev. William C. Cattell, D. D., LL. D., President.
Hon. W. S. Kirkpatrick, A. M., Dean of the Law Department, and Professor of Elementary Law and History of Jurisprudence.
Matthew Hale Jones, A. M., Professor of Municipal Law.
Traill Green, M. D., LL. D., Professor of Medical Jurisprudence.
Francis A. March, LL. D., Lecturer on Constitutional and Public Law and the Roman Law.
E. S. Barrick, A. M., LL. B., Instructor in Municipal Law.

No complete schedules of lectures was ever followed out. The number of students was small, and they received their instruction as they have done since, in the office of Judge Kirkpatrick.

The courses of instruction in these several schools, together with the methods of teaching, the facilities, text-books, and other particulars, are given in the annual catalogue, to which the reader is referred for further details. I shall now speak only of a few topics in which Lafayette College presents distinctive features: and first with reference to BIBLICAL INSTRUCTION.

The systematic and thorough study of the Holy Scriptures throughout the courses at Lafayette, is a fact that has frequently been noted with pleasure by the friends of sound learning. Any attempt to trace this feature of the curriculum to its origin, takes us back to the very beginning. The College was founded and fostered, as we have seen, by men of eminent piety, who had a profound sense of the worth of the Bible, not only as a book of moral guidance, but as one whose study was admirably adapted for the purposes of liberal culture. With such reverence for the book, and such views of its educational value, they were not likely to neglect its claim to become an important feature of the curriculum. Later in its history, the College came under the care of the Synod, and important changes were made, mainly, however, in the direction of systemizing the Biblical studies.

That these early traditions have not been forgotten in the recent growth of the College, may be seen at once from the present schedule of studies. Indeed, President Cattell's inaugural address in 1864 was mainly devoted to this very subject. From this masterly plea for the introduction of the Bible as a text-book in a course of liberal studies, I may be permitted to quote here a single sentence : "Whatever may be the value of other books, we contend that the Bible surpasses them all, and that the course of study, in every Christian College, should be so arranged, that, while its general contents should engage the attention of all candidates for the first degree, certain portions of it, in the original tongues, should be studied with at least as much thoroughness as is given to any classic writer, and that this special study of THE BOOK should be an addition to such collateral instruction as may be given in the other departments, especially Mental and Political Philosophy, Ethics, Archæology and History."

The scheme of Biblical instruction at present will be seen from the following paragraphs, which I take from the catalogue :

The New Testament is used as a text-book for the regular daily recitations in Greek during the two terms of the Classical course. The Gospel according to Mark is the study of one term, and a Greek harmony of all the Gospels of a second term. The life and words of Christ are thus made the centre of Biblical study.

On Monday morning, throughout the year, each of the classes has a Biblical exercise. In these the Assembly's Catechism is studied. In the Freshman year, a general view of the contents of the Bible, and of each book, is given, with special attention to Chronology, History and Geography. The Bible in English, and Coleman's Geography of the Bible, are used as text-books. In the Sophomore year, the Acts of the Apostles are read in the original Greek, and special study given to the lives and labors of the Apostles, and to the origin and antiquities of the Christian Church. In the Junior year, the Epistle to the Romans is studied in the original Greek, both as to language and doctrine, with much care and iteration. In the Senior year, a daily recitation, for one term, is devoted to the critical study of the language of the Gospels, both the original Greek and the English of our standard version. In this year are also studied the Old Testament in the original Hebrew (an elective study) ; the history of translations of the Bible, especially the history of the English Bible, its merits and influence ; the evidences of Christianity, with Butler's Analogy and the Rule of Faith.

Throughout the course, the language of the English version is constantly examined and referred to as standard English. In Political Philosophy, reference is made to the Hebrew Commonwealth. The truths taught in the Bible in relation to the character, powers and duties of man, are inculcated as fundamental in Mental and Moral Philosophy, and the Philosophy of History is identified with the History of Redemption.

It is designed to make the Bible the central object of study in the whole College course.

The students of all the undergraduate courses engage in the Monday morning exercises throughout; those of the Scientific Department, however, studying the Acts of the Apostles in English and the Epistle to the Romans in German.

THE CHRISTIAN CLASSICS.

Another feature kindred to the one above noted is seen in the addition of an elective course in the Classical Department known as the Douglass Course. In 1872, Benjamin Douglass, Esq., a gentleman of wealth and learning, a warm friend and patron of the College, proposed to the Board to endow a course in the Christian Classics, that students for the ministry and others who desired might enjoy the full advantages of philological training in the noble languages of antiquity, and in the meantime pursue the Christian instead of the Pagan literature. The offer was accepted, and the course accordingly established. Instructors were provided and classes organized in 1872.

Arrangements were at once made for the issue of suitable text-books to answer the need created by the new course. This work was undertaken by Prof. March. Under his editorship, several volumes of the series were issued. Latin Hymns, the Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius, Tertullian, Athenagoras and Justin Martyr.

A large proportion of the students elected this course from year to year, and it would no doubt have become a permanent feature of the curriculum, had not business reverses made it impossible for Mr. Douglass to maintain it longer than five or six years. In 1878 it was abandoned, but Athenagoras and the Latin Hymns continue as a part of the regular Classical course and Lactantius has been elective with Juvenal in the Senior year.

THE GENERAL SCIENTIFIC COURSE.

I would also call special attention to the General Scientific Course, as offering a system of thorough liberal culture based upon the study of the Natural Sciences, Modern Languages and Mathematics.

The munificent endowment of Mr. Pardee enabled the authorities to establish this course in 1866.

Its design, as already indicated, was to furnish a system of instruction that should be fully equivalent in general information and scholarly culture to the Classical course, but without the ancient languages. Anglo-Saxon, English, German and French are therefore substituted for Latin and Greek. These languages are pursued in the light of Modern Philology, with the systematic thoroughness which we are accustomed to associate with classical studies.

That there is a large class who prefer such lines of study, is evident from the success of the course at Lafayette, and at other institutions of our own and sister States where similar courses have since been established.

The education heretofore afforded by our Colleges, deriving its main elements from the ancient languages, seems to many to have too little contact with the living present. Recent statistics show that, notwithstanding the largely increased number of Colleges in our country, the number of students in proportion to the population has been steadily decreasing for the last thirty years; while the number of young men who could afford an education, as well as the general interest in educational subjects, has been on the increase for the same period. And not alone with young men who should throng our College halls, but with a large class of scholars, there is a growing indifference to the language and literature of antiquity. Ancient thought is so remote from us, and belongs to conditions of civilization so different from our own, that classical education, it is thought, is encumbered with a great deal that is only in the most indirect manner, if at all, pertinent to modern life. Of course, there is much to be said the other way. The advocates of classical study may indeed urge this very remoteness as one of the main reasons why the products of ancient genius in the noble languages which enshrine them should ever remain the basis of a broad and thorough liberal culture. But the fact remains of a decided and growing preference on the part especially of those who, in the formation of their minds, have come under the influence of modern science, for those lines of study that have a modern outlook. "Our oldest and best Colleges have made large concessions to this demand, in some cases abridging the Latin and Greek, in others providing elective studies in the upper classes. It seemed best to the authorities of Lafayette to squarely meet this demand, and thus leave the old classical culture unrestricted in its own development. They therefore added a new course, pure and simple, with no Latin and Greek at all, but with an adequate amount of philological study, having for its basis Modern Languages, and especially the English." (President Cattell's address before the Synod.)

Great care has been taken that the new course shall not be removed from the old landmarks. Coincident recitations and lectures, and in every way as many points of contact as possible, have been secured, and the old approved methods of instruction kept up throughout. The course has been carried on with earnestness and vigor, and has more than realized the expectations of the founders in its gratifying success.

I have noted from the present schedule the proportional distribution of studies in this course. It is as follows :

		Recitations.	Per cent.
Mathematics, Astronomy, Mechanics and Physics,		649	.249

THE LINGUISTIC STUDY OF ENGLISH.

Another important distinctive feature, and the last to which I shall now call attention, is the study of our tongue. It will be observed that we do not mean by this the ordinary exercises of classes in English, as grammar, parsing and the rhetorical and literary criticism of authors merely, but the thorough and systematic philological study of the language. A separate Professorship in this department was established, and the English classics introduced into the curriculum in 1857, Lafayette being the first American College to thus recognize the claims of our own language and literature. The English language is here associated with Comparative Philology, and thus made the centre of linguistic study.

The method pursued in this department, which has received the most favorable notice from eminent educators everywhere,* may be best presented in a general way by an extract from the catalogue : "The English language is studied in the same way as the Latin and Greek. An English classic is taken up. The text is minutely analyzed, the idioms explored, and synonyms weighed ; the mythology, biography, history, metaphysics, theology, geography, are all looked up. The rhetorical laws of English composition, and the principles of epic and dramatic art are applied to Milton, Shakespeare and other English classics, line by line. The character of the author, and his life and times, are studied, and an attempt is made to comprehend these great representative works in their relations to the English literature and the English race. The text is also made the foundation of more general study of language ; the origin and history of recurring words, the laws by which words grow up from their roots in our language, the laws by which changes from one language to another are governed, are stamped on the mind by continual iteration ; and an attempt is made to ground all these facts and laws in laws of mind, and of the organs of speech."

* The following extract will show the general tone of comment by learned men so early as 1870, upon the English course at Lafayette. It is taken from an article in the British Quarterly for October of that year, entitled, "The Higher Education of the United States :"

All the students take up the studies of this department, but most of all those of the General Scientific Course, where they are regarded to a considerable extent as a substitute for the culture derived from the study of Latin and Greek as it is usually pursued in our Colleges. An outline of the actual work done in this course, therefore, will better exhibit the plan in some of its details.

In the Freshman class, there is first of all a thorough drill in analysis, parsing and the syntax of sentences. This is the basis of "A distinctive feature worth mentioning is seen in the curriculum of Lafayette College, at Easton, in Pennsylvania. This is not one of the largest institutions of the kind, but it is eminently distinguished by the intelligence and zeal which pervade its arrangements, and make themselves felt in the success of the teaching. For some years past, under the able direction of Professor March, the English language has been made a prominent feature in the programme. The Professor treats the English author chosen for study—Milton, for instance—as a competent classical teacher does Homer or Virgil The text is minutely analyzed, the mythological, historical and metaphysical allusions carefully investigated and appreciated, parallel passages from English authors of different periods adduced, and the rules of composition in poetry or prose illustrated. As to the language itself, independently of the thought conveyed by it, investigations are conducted into the origin, value and chronological history of the words, their formation, etc.; and, in short, into everything which belongs to the domain of comparative philology. Nowhere else is the subject treated with equal competence and success."

To which may be added one from the London Athæneum :

"The studies of a philological character carried on at Lafayette College, are not surpassed in thoroughness by those which we are accustomed to associate with German universities."

FRANCIS A. MARCH, LL. D., L. H. D.,

PROFESSOR OF COMPARATIVE PHILOLOGY AND ENGLISH LITERATURE

the future work, and a complete mastery of the general principles of syntax, and skill in the solution of familiar idioms is brought constantly into requisition. Then before the more advanced work in philology is undertaken, other languages are studied. French and German (in the Classical course Latin and Greek) come in as parts of the organized scheme of linguistic study, and are so pursued as to become a means of special culture in English.

In the Sophomore year, they take up in the first term Trench on the Study of Words ; also Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, in connection with which Fowler's English Grammar is studied. The grammar subjects for this term are Syntax, Grammatical Equivalents, Rhetorical Forms and Historical Elements, on which daily recitations are heard, and the lessons learned are constantly illustrated by the text under review. The whole story of The Pilgrim's Progress is read, the allegorical meaning called for part by part, and salient doctrinal points noticed.

The staple of daily drill, however, is found in connection with the minute and careful treatment of selected passages. These are studied clause by clause and word by word. The syntax is first made clear, then words are taken up ; synonyms and phrases grammatically equivalent brought into comparison and the student taught to feel an intelligent preference for one or another form of expression as it may promote perspicuity, liveliness or other traits of a clear and vigorous style. In the treatment of single words also the German and French are called for, and as far as practicable in the Scientific Course, the Latin ; the laws of change, the derivation, the root, the radical idea, kindred words, the primary meaning, changes in the meaning with the connection of thought, together with such other lines of inquiry as are suggested by Trench, as, indications of history, character, moral suggestions and the like ; poetical forms of frequent occurrence are also specially noted, and the collocation of words discussed, both with respect to syntax and the rhythmical cadences of speech.

In connection with this daily drill, the life and times of Bunyan are discussed in writing by each member of the class, and his diction compared with that of other standard works and especially with the Bible. In this part of the work students are judiciously directed by questions and references, but are expected to look up information everywhere.

This system of daily drill on the best passages, and weekly essays on topics growing out of the discussion of the life and times of the author is found to lead the student on by sure and rapid steps to an intelligent appreciation of the author's works, his place in literature, and on the whole to the best mastery of his genius.

The same general plan is pursued progressively through the course, with changes from term to term, in the topics embraced in the drill.

The Sophomores (second term) read Spenser's Faery Queen, with the same concentration upon representative passages; the special drill topics being Derivation, Romance of Chivalry and Spenserian Stanza. In the third term, Chaucer (Canterbury Tales) is the basis of work. Several of the Tales are read and discussed, but the famous Prologue is the special subject of study and philological drill. All the results of previous work are kept constantly in review. This is an emphatic feature of the method. "A line of questions once begun is always kept up." The special drill topics this term are Phonetic Elements, Orthographic Elements, a review of Historical Elements and Criticism of uncertain Text.

The Juniors (first term) read Bacon's Essays with the same care and iteration. During the second term they study Anglo-Saxon, in which subject the classes have, since 1870, used Prof. March's Grammar and Reader. They also read Milton's Paradise Lost. The Classical and General Scientific students here recite together (as they do in all the subsequent Anglo-Saxon and English studies of the courses). The special objective points are Punctuation, Poetical Forms and Epic Art. There is, however, the same round of daily drill, with increased attention to Comparative Philology, the courses giving mutual aid in supplying the materials for their research. In the third term, Anglo-Saxon is continued, and Shakespeare's play of Julius Cæsar is read, with special attention to the Etymology of Pronouns, Pronominal Elements, Instinctive Forms, Dramatic Art and Creative Power in Language.

In the Senior year the first term is given to a more rapid and general survey of English literature by means of a Compendium and class discussions and conversations. In the second term a representative work of a representative author, selected by the Professor, is studied with a view to more extended researches in philology and criticism, and one elaborate essay by each member of the class, to be handed in at the close of the term. What is known as the Fowler Prize is awarded on the basis of this term's work. During the third term, Senior year, Prof. Whitney's Lectures on Language are studied. The work of the entire course in Comparative Philology is reviewed and co-ordinated, and advanced work pursued by means of lectures and class discussions.

Such in brief outline is the plan of the course in English ; but the wisdom, skill and success with which it is pursued and realized can be but imperfectly represented to those who have not observed the method in its actual workings. Prof. March, to whom we are indebted for the rise of Anglo-Saxon studies, and this admirable method of pursuing the English classics, is known as a plain man of plain words, who drives right at his point and seldom misses it. As an educator he is earnest, thorough and vigorous, and his work is characterized by a straightforward energy which secures the interest of students, and stimulates the dullest as well as the brightest to vigorous exertion. It is perhaps not too much to say, that in no class in any College is better work done by the young men than in his, nor with a more genuine scholarly enthusiasm. He will take the little speech of Flavius that opens the play of Julius Cæsar, and engage the class for an hour upon it, during which time, though it may seem all too short to them, they will have gleaned with him far and near, and brought in rich burdens from many fields. It is a matter of surprise to the student how many sources of knowledge are compassed in these rapid excursions. The classic page itself is but the starting point ; from it they go forth in every direction ; to Rome, and the early times of the empire ; to the court of Elizabeth, and the history of her reign ; to Shakespeare's masterly development of human character ; to dramatic art, its aims, rules and devices ; and upon the manifold lines of linguistic investigation ; the author's diction, the influences that determine it, the adaptation to character ; the forms and relations of sentences ; the growth, history uses and relations of words ; and so to the psychology and physiology of speech.

These topics, many of which, as ordinarily discussed, might seem abstruse and unintelligible, are opened up and illustrated by easy and natural questions growing out of the passage ; so that a knowledge of the most important principles of art and linguistic science is grounded in and associated with the forms of our daily speech.

One is forcibly reminded of the words of Arnold : "What a treat it would be to teach Shakespeare to a good class of young Greeks in regenerate Athens ; to dwell upon him, line by line and word by word ; and so to get all his pictures and thoughts leisurely into one's mind, till I verily think one would, after a time, almost give out light in the dark, after having been steeped, as it were, in such an atmosphere of brilliance."

Treated in this manner, the English not only offers a good field for a most thorough grammatical, rhetorical and literary discipline, but also as the centre of linguistic studies, and pursued co-ordinately with Anglo-Saxon, Latin, Greek, French and German, is a great aid in that larger field of learning which modern philology enables us to embrace by the study of languages.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

This Society, founded September, 1845, is composed of graduates of the College, and such of their classmates (who left College before graduation, and in good standing) as may have been elected. The objects of the association are to continue the relations of friendly and cordial intimacy which exist among students of the same institution, and to keep alive their interest in Alma Mater. Local sections are formed from time to time at remote points where a number of alumni are gathered. The annual meeting is held on Tuesday preceding commencement, when an oration is delivered, and the business of the society is transacted. The following is a list of orators at the annual alumni meetings, as far as can be ascertained :

Treasurer—Edgar M. Green, M. D., '83, Easton.

Clerk—Orrin Serfass, Esq., '82, Easton.

WASHINGTON AND FRANKLIN LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Of these I have already made brief historical mention (see pages 19–20). Their weekly meetings are held on Wednesday evenings, and the usual opportunities are afforded for literary and forensic culture, and for acquiring a familiarity with the parliamentary rules common to deliberative bodies. To afford an opportunity to prepare for the duties required by these societies, the members are excused on Wednesday afternoons from College exercises.

On the day preceding Commencement the Literary Societies hold reunion meetings in the forenoon, and an oration is delivered before them in the evening, the societies alternating in the choice of the orator.*

THE BRAINERD MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

To this I have also briefly alluded (see page 20). Its primary object was to foster a missionary spirit and disseminate among the students a knowledge of missionary work. It was, however, for years the only religious organization of the College, and its influence was felt among the students and in the vicinity through many forms of Christian work.

Its anniversary is held on the Sabbath afternoon preceding Commencement, in the old chapel (now called Brainerd Hall), and consists of an address by the President of the Society, a report from the Secretary, giving an abstract of the proceedings for the year, and addresses by returned missionaries and graduates of the Society. In the evening a sermon is delivered before this Society and (since 1874) the Society of the Christian Brotherhood.

Among the members of the Brainerd Society who have been actively engaged in the Foreign Missionary work may be mentioned:

James B. Ramsey, class of '36, among the Choctaws; Levi Janvier, '36, India; James G. Junkin, '38, Mexico; A. J. Collyrus, '43, Greece; John Bemo, (Nephew of Osceola), '43, among the Seminoles; Washington McDonogh, '43, Africa; Thomas Wilson, '43, Africa; T. H. Newton, '46, West Indies; John S. Woodside, '46, India; G. W. Simpson, '46, Africa; Victor Herschell, '47, Jamaica; Ishwari Das (Adam), '48, India; Isidor Lowenthal, '48, India; R. H. Nassau, '49, Africa; Samuel R. Gayley, '53, China; C. R. Mills, '53, China; John Menaul, '65, Africa; L. W. Eckard, '66, China; R. Arthur, '68, Siam; Oscar J. Hardin, '68, Syria; James T. Houston, '71, Brazil; J. T. Lloyd, '76, Africa; C. L. Stevens, '76, Syria;

*For list of the Annual Orators, see page 74.

S. A. Soxman, '78, Alaska; F. H. Chalfant, '81, China; Wm. P. Chalfant, '81, China; E. M. Haymaker, '81, Guatemala; S. P. Glover, '82, Syria; J. B. Kolb, '84, Brazil; J. G. Watson, '84, Persia; S. V. Fait, '85, among the Chickasaws.

THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD.

In late years, and particularly at the time of the great revivals in 1871 and 1873, large additions have been made to the number of professing Christians in the College, and there has been a felt need in this growing Christian community for a religious organization, which should in some measure supply the place of a church as well as a Young Men's Christian Association. The Christian Brotherhood was organized in September, 1874, with this object in view. The following are the articles adopted at its organization:

1. The Christian Brotherhood of Lafayette College hereby established under the authority of the Board of Trustees, is composed of members of the College who are in good and regular standing in any Evangelical church, and who signify their willingness to join the organization by subscribing to the covenant.

2. The Brotherhood has no authority to administer the sacraments, or to exercise discipline over its members. Its design is first, to promote the higher Christian life among its members by a mutual watch and care, by praying with and for each other, and by living together in Christian love; and secondly, to advance the kingdom of Christ in the hearts of others in every way that may be indicated by God's Providence.

3. The details of the management are left to the President of the Faculty, and to a Board of Counsellors, consisting of three students from each class, who shall be elected by the several classes the first Thursday evening of each session after Divine service.

The daily prayer-meeting in Brainerd Hall, together with the various Sunday Schools and religious meetings in the vicinity, which were formerly carried on by the Missionary Society, now come more directly under the auspices of the Brotherhood.

THE NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY.

The Natural History Society of Lafayette College was organized by Professor Porter, April 6th, 1868. Its general aim is to encourage and advance the study of nature in the College; its particular aim, to explore the vicinity (a district comprised in a circle with a radius of twenty miles, having Pardee Hall as its centre), to collect specimens for a museum which shall present as full an exhibit as possible of the natural history of the district, to make maps for illustration, and to gather Indian relics. Acquisitions from abroad are also received.

The meetings are held on alternate Friday evenings during term time, at which papers are read, topics discussed, lectures delivered, and donations for the library or collections received. Brief reports of these proceedings are published in The Lafayette. Its library already contains a number of valuable scientific works, and its large and rapidly increasing collections are most valuable as a further means of instruction.

The Society is constituted of active members elected by ballot from the professors, students, and residents in the neighborhood who have at any former time been connected with the college; and correspondents, consisting of old members who have removed to a distance, and others chosen by an honorary vote. The Professor of Botany and Zoology is President of the Society ex-officio.

THE CHEMICAL SOCIETY.

The Lafayette Chemical Society was organized by Professor T. M. Drown in February, 1875. Its membership comprises the instructors in the chemical department, and the students of the College interested in the study of chemistry. Its object is to supplement the regular work of College instruction and study in this department, by encouraging and aiding students in independent original research. The professor in charge of the laboratories aids the advanced students in conducting their investigations, and regular weekly meetings are held, at which the results are presented to the Society in the form of papers, and the subjects connected with them discussed by the members. Reports of these meetings are published in The Lafayette. During the College year, 1875–'76, fifteen such original papers were read by the students and assistants in the department, besides minor communications of interest. The funds of the Society are expended solely for the purchase of books and periodicals. A valuable library of books of reference is thus rapidly accumulating.

THE SOCIETY OF PHYSICS AND ENGINEERING.

This Society has recently been organized by Prof. Moore. Its object is the discussion of subjects relating to these departments, but which cannot be fully discussed in the regular lectures and recitations of the classes. As soon as the enlargement of Jenks' Hall is completed, the Society will have a suitable hall for its meeting and extensive laboratories for original investigations in Physics, Applied Mechanics, etc.

In addition to these Societies, there exists, among the students, a number of organizations; some for physical exercise, as the boating, base and foot-ball clubs, others for the cultivation of music, as the glee and quartette clubs, the college orchestra, and others of a mingled social and literary character, as the Greek Letter Societies with affiliated branches in other Colleges.

PROGRAMS OF COMMENCEMENT, JUNIOR EXHIBITION, ETC.

"FIRST SEMI-ANNUAL EXAMINATION—1832*

On Monday the 8th of October, 1832, the examination of the students took place at the College, commencing at 9 o'clock, A. M. and continuing to a late hour in the afternoon, in the presence of several of the Trustees, and other literary gentlemen who attended in persuance of a public invitation.

The examinations embraced the course of study in the English, Classical and Mathematical Departments, and were calculated to do much credit as well to the Faculty for their care and attention in instructing, as to the students themselves for their diligence and assiduity in study. Whilst every part of the examination was satisfactory, it is but just to observe that in the mathematical demonstrations, the students evinced an extraordinary degree of accuracy.

In the evening the students repaired to the Presbyterian Church in the Borough of Easton, where, in the presence of a large assembly of ladies and gentlemen of the place, The First Annual Report of the Trustees of the College was read, and addresses or orations on the following subjects were delivered by the gentlemen hereinafter named, who had been appointed to that duty by the Franklin and Washington Literary Societies, attached to the institution.

* From the First Annual Catalogue, 1832.

CHARLES F. WORRELL, New Jersey . . . "Qualifications of a Christian Missionary."
JAMES B. RAMSEY, Philadelphia. . . . . "Importance of a Religious Education for the Prosperity of a Republican Government."
ISAAC HALL, Maryland. . . . . "Departure from the Spirit of our Forefathers."
NATHAN F. CHAPMAN, Connecticut. . . . . "Duty of Nations to Acknowledge the Moral Government of God."
THOMAS R. F. A. MITCHELL, Alabama. . . . . "Importance of Female Education and the Influence of Christianity upon the same."
CHARLES RAMSEY, Juniata County, Pa. . . . . "Importance of Preserving the Union of the United States."
ANDREW BARR, Northumberland County, Pa. . "Benefits of the American Tariff System."
OLIVER W. STEVENS, Georgia. . . . . "Remarks in Opposition to the Tariff and the Advantages of Free Trade."
JAMES FRENCH, Ireland. . . . . "Matter, its Changes and Indestructibility."
ROBERT PETWAY, Tennessee. . . . . "Military Glory."
WM. D. HOWARD, Philadelphia. . . . . "Evils of Civil War in the United States."
JOHN J. CARROLL, Bucks County, Pa. . . "Importance of the Missionary Enterprise."

The composition and delivery of these orations, were such as to evince thought, research and an attention to the rules of composition and elocution. The matter and manner of the addresses, did great credit to the young gentlemen who composed and delivered them.

By the Annual Report it will be seen that the Institution during the last session, has reached to the number of sixty-seven students, from no less than thirteen States of the Union.

It is hoped that this auspicious commencement of our infant Lafayette may be followed up, and that at each annual examination the institution may grow in numbers, in character and strength, until it may be hailed as the Alma Mater of the most learned and conspicuous members of our community."

The next programs now extant are those of 1838, 1840 and 1845, which are as follows :

NOTE.—Owing to dissensions in the class no exercises were held; but there was a public presentation of the Class Memorial, a Bell, cast from old cannon used in the late War, at the foundry of Meneely & Co., West Troy, N. Y.; weight 1750 pounds; inscribed "Memorial of Class of '79; Presented to Lafayette College, June 30, 1879. Bene orasse bene studuisse."

Oh, thou bell! new college bell!
Though of metal, dull and changeless;
Soon, indeed, wilt thou know well
All about the flunks and fizzles,
Rushes, miscellaneous mizzles
Of a college life.

E. S. BOYER, President of the class, handed the rope to President Cattell. HARVEY SHAW, (afterwards a missionary in Mexico) originated the proposition to make the gift.

COLLEGE HILL AS SEEN FROM THE SOUTH.

CATALOGUE OF THE ALUMNI,

GRADUATE, NON-GRADUATE AND HONORARY.

THE METHOD OF ARRANGEMENT.

In the following catalogue it is intended to record the name of every one who has been at any time a student in Lafayette, or who has received an honorary degree. In the class-rolls the arrangement of the names is as follows: 1st, the graduates; 2d, those who withdrew from College before graduation, and 3d, the recipients of Honorary degrees.

1st. The Graduates; those who, since 1868, received their degrees in the Technical Courses of study being placed after the others.

2d. The Former Students, or those who withdrew from Lafayette before graduation. In case they concluded their studies at another college, this fact is stated in fine print below. In the earlier years of the College (1832-50) the maintenance of the Academic, Scientific and Normal courses of study, distinct from the Classical course, which alone led regularly to graduation, has caused no small difficulty in the proper arrangement of these names; this may, therefore, not have been done with entire accuracy. In classing the names according to the date of entrance, wherever there was uncertainty as to the class, I have simply assumed that the person would have graduated in four years; so that one who entered college, for instance, in 1832, is placed in the class of 1836, etc.

As to the double alphabetical list, from 1836 to 1850, the first contains those who are known to have reached Freshman or higher standing; the second embraces those whose course is not known to have extended beyond preparatory branches of study.

3rd. The recipients of Honorary Degrees.

☞For a list of abbreviations employed, see the end of the catalogue.

PRELIMINARY NOTE.

In the absence of official records in the earlier years the minutes and rolls of the Literary Societies have proved of great service in perfecting the following catalogue. It is, therefore, fitting to state that the Washington Literary Society, which at first bore the name of Philomathean, was organized in the Manual Labor Academy of Pennsylvania at Germantown, Monday, July 5, 1830, chiefly by the endeavors of Messrs. S. M. Hamill and B. Tyler, of whom sketches are given in the ensuing pages. Its founders were seven in number, viz: Messrs. Samuel M. Hamill, Stephen Henry, Robert W. Landis,* James McElroy, Samuel Sessions, Benjamin Tyler and Joseph Worrell. In 1830 it added to its membership the following (besides those who followed it on its transfer to Easton in 1832), viz: Messrs. Fithian, Gilmer, J. McLeod, James N. Perry, ——— Shaw, and William Stokes; and in 1831, similarly, Wm. M. Booth, W. S. Hall (from Sussex Co., N. J.) Wm. McCorkle, Edmund McKinney,† Israel Miller, ——— Paul, J. Preston, R. Rittenhouse, J. H. Sloan and ——— Van-Buren.

In 1831 a paper was drawn up and circulated by Mr. John J. Carrell, which resulted in the organization of the Franklin Literary Society, November 26, 1831. The paper was signed by twelve persons, of whom sketches of Messrs. Burton, Benjamin Carrell, John J. Carrell, Harvey, Horton, Mitchell, Nivin, and Struthers, are given in the following pages. The *Rev. Robert Wharton Landis, A. M., D. D., was b. in Phila., Jan. 8, 1809; ord. Pres. min. '32; preached as pastor in six States; a chaplain in the army in the war; distinguished as a writer, speaker and preacher; author of seven vols.; d. Danville, Ky., Jan. 24, '83.

†Edmund McKinney was b. Middlesex, Pa., April 21, 1815; grad. Wash. Coll. Pa., '35; Pres. missionary to the Choctaws '44-56; army chaplain '62-5; editor Keyport, N. J., '71-77; where he d. March 3, '78.

remaining signers ceased their connection with the Society on its transfer to Easton in the following Spring; they were Messrs. H. S. Elder and Graef, from Philadelphia, Joseph H. Schreiner‡ and J. P. Tustin.¿

At the public exercises in September, 1835, there was no graduating class, but the first honorary degree was conferred, that of Doctor of Divinity, upon the Rev. Matthew Brown, President of Jefferson College, Canonsburg.

GEOGRAPHICAL DIRECTORY

TO THE RESIDENCES OF ALL THE MEN OF LAFAYETTE.

This is intended to give the present, or the latest ascertained post-office address; and, if deceased, the place of last residence. Where many reside in the same town the alumni are placed first, then the deceased; afterward those who have received any honorary degree, as indicated by the letter h prefixed to the date of the degree.

F denotes members of the Faculty.
T denotes Trustees of the College.
? denotes uncertain P. O. address.
* denotes deceased.

☞ Corrections and additions to this list, if promptly communicated, will be a special favor to the compiler. For Foreign countries, see last page.

MILITARY ROLL.

Containing the names of all alumni of Lafayette who have served in the Army or Navy of the United States, in the Mexican War or in the late war (Union and Confederate), arranged in the order of College classes.

NOTE 1.—This list bears 286 names, of which 256 served on the Union side in the late war. It includes only those who were regularly mustered into service, and consequently excludes all agents of the Commissions, examining surgeons, provost marshal's employees and the like, though we have high precedent for their admission to the Roll of Honor.

NOTE 2.—The alumni who served in the U. S. Christian Commission were E. C. Cline, S. J. Coffin, N. J. Conklin, R. H. Davis, D. M. Heydrick, N. S. Lowrie, N. S. McFetridge, J A. McGowan, John Menaul, W. P. Montelius, J. J. Parks, Robert Scott, G. L. Shearer, and JOSEPH A. PATTERSON, (who died of disease therein contracted, December, 1864.) In the service of the U. S. Sanitary Commission were W. H. James, J. J. Parks, S. W. Pomeroy, and R. Scott. Hon. W. M. Francis was Special Relief Agent for the State of Penna. See note on page 32.

HISTORY OF ATHLETICS IN LAFAYETTE

BY ALDEN MARCH, CLASS OF 1890.

Professional humorists have of late years found an inexhaustible reservoir from which to draw their witticisms in what is termed the "athletic course" of the modern college. The college man of the period, as he is cartooned, is a medal-bedecked disciple of Mr. Sullivan, holding in one hand a 100-pound or less dumb-bell, and having grouped around him in picturesque confusion the emblems of sport—boxing-gloves, tug-of-war ropes, leaping hurdles, shot, hammer, base-ball and foot-ball paraphernalia and the like. Books, essays, the pen which is so mighty, all, they say, have relapsed calmly into a state of innocuous desuetude and have become obsolete at institutions of learning. They would have us believe that the great end and aim of the college of to-day is not to train up Young America to be sages, but rather to make them athletes.

"There is no smoke without some fire." The fire which has given birth to that enveloping smoke of witticism is the increased attention paid to athletics at every college. Mens sana in sano corpore is the almost universal ideal of educators, and so firmly has this notion of the Roman fathers taken hold in our nineteenth century that the comic press is tempted to award athletics first place in the fitting of young men for life's struggles. Educators, as a rule, now encourage athletics in their institutions. It is not merely a student affair, tolerated by the Faculties, but it has become a part and parcel of the college itself, a thing fostered, aided and abetted by those in authority because of its value in making, not book-worms,—there are enough of those already in the world,—but ideal students, who, besides having well-cultivated and well-developed brains, have also the strength of body requisite to exert those brains to their fullest extent. Plain, ordinary, every-day exercise will not do this as thoroughly as what is termed "athletics" does. It lacks the excitement and the glory of conquest, which ennoble and strengthen it.

Therefore, and since this is a history of Lafayette boys and all their achievements, it is but right, after recording the products of the sana mens to mention some of the proofs of the existence of the sanum corpus.

Conquests are possible in the athletic world both on land and on water. To the athlete the latter at once suggests

BOATING.

But unfortunately this has become one of the lost arts at Lafayette. As one of our Alumni jocosely remarked on a certain joyful occasion, "Our boys don't seem to take well to water." This is to be especially regretted since nature has supplied such facilities for this sport as would make the eyes of students of boating colleges turn emerald with envy. The Lehigh river offers an unexcelled still-water course, and it has been the perpetual source of wondering comment to students from other institutions, why these advantages are not utilized. Perhaps under the guardianship of the Advisory Committee a financial "boom" will strike Lafayette's athletics, and then the "maroon and white" will doubtless be the colors of the winning boat in some intercollegiate contest. But this is rather more prophecy than history. About the year 1870 the boating fever was strong upon the college. There were at that time six boats in the several clubs, and the annual regatta was, so says the Lafayette Monthly, the athletic event of the period. The alumni became greatly interested in it, and the Scranton and Wilkes-Barre graduates showed their interest by presenting three fine boats to the College. I remember they were received with ceremonies and processions which augured great things for boating ; but, sad to relate, the enthusiastic spirit then awakened evaporated almost as soon as did the more substantial spirit broken on the boats at their christening, for the attendant financial obligations gradually became too great for the generations succeeding, and boating died a lingering death. And although a revival of interest periodically and spasmodically shows itself, the resurrection of that lost art has not yet come. No contest was ever held between Lafayette and any other college crew.

GENERAL ATHLETICS.

After boating had given forth its last groan, and a decent period of mourning had elapsed, out of its ashes sprang a new and powerful creature—general athletics. Previous to 1880 field sports were not in an organized condition, but in that year General Athletics put on a new uniform, so to speak, and rushed forward to win a name for Lafayette. The Annual Field Sports became a regular event, and increased entries, systematic training and good material made it an event looked forward to with interest by students and their friends. The first contest was held May 26, 1880. In 1882 the first medals were awarded. If I remember rightly, they were leather affairs, about as large as small saucers and surrounded by a blue fringe, but their proud possessors would probably not trade them for their weight in silver, and very likely to-day those leather medals are far more treasured by their owners than any of the gold or silver ones that have been awarded in succeeding contests. Mr. Burr W. McIntosh, '84, Lafayette's best known athlete and one of the "fathers" of our athletics, won in 1883 Lafayette's first inter-collegiate medal. In the contest at Mott Haven, May 25, 1883, he succeeded in taking second prize in the hundred yards dash, being beaten by a few feet. At the same contest Lafayette was represented by the best tug-of-war team that has ever contested in collegiate sports, and each of its members returned with the golden emblem of supremacy pinned on his coat. The team was composed of the two Bond brothers, Wm. C., '83, and S. C., '86, J. A. Bell, '86 and H. C. Reeder, '86. One of the amusing incidents of the contest at Mott Haven happened in the tug with Columbia,—I think it was. Jim Bell, seeing Lafayette had things her own way got up from his place in the tug and went back to stamp down the dirt at the anchor's feet, leaving the three men to do the tugging against the opposing four. The latter tried to seize their opportunity but the "dauntless" three held their own amid Lafayette cheers and Jim Bell's smiles. "Well," somebody was heard to remark after Harvard had been pulled four inches, thus giving us first place, "those Lafayette fellows ought to tug. They have to walk up and down an almost perpendicular hill whenever they go to town and that's enough to give them legs of iron."

When '84 graduated athletics suffered greatly, but G. B. M. Zerr, '86, L. D. Godshall, '87, and J. H. Rohrbach, '87, stepped in and filled up the void. At the Inter-collegiate Mott Haven Contest in 1885, Mr. Godshall carried the Lafayette's colors over the height of 9 feet 7¼ inches in the pole-vault and Mr. Rohrbach put the shot 38 feet 1 inch, each receiving for our college first gold medals. The tug-of-war team took second place in the same contest.

In 1886 the Inter-collegiate Athletic Association of Pennsylvania was formed, and at the first field meeting of the new organization, Lafayette as a college took second place, with seven firsts and four seconds, being but one first and two seconds behind the University of Penna. Of these prizes Mr. Zerr, '86, took four firsts, the 100 and 440 yards dashes, putting the 56-pound weight and the hurdle race, being second in the 220 yards dash. Mr. Rohrbach, '87, took the first award in putting the shot and seconds in throwing the hammer and the 56-pound weight. Mr. Godshall '87, won the pole-vault, with Mr. Morton, '88, second. The tug-of-war team won an easy first. At the Commencement Contest on the campus Mr. Godshall broke the Inter-collegiate record in the pole-vault, topping 10 feet 7¾ inches. Lafayette held this as an Inter-collegiate record for some years, but it has recently been broken. In 1887 Mr. Rohrbach added to Lafayette's honors another Inter-collegiate second in putting the shot and Mr. Godshall another first in the pole-vault. In 1889 T. S. March, '89, won seconds in the high and the broad jumps at the State Inter-collegiate Sports, and in 1890 G. A. Harvey, '91, took second in the broad jump and W. F. Johnson, '91, number two in the 440 yards dash.

The following is a table of the records made at the first contest in 1880 and the best Lafayette records, with holders, showing the advance made in general athletics in ten years.

[First is given the record and winner in the first contest, and then the best record holder and record.]

Dr. W. C. Cattell's final efforts as President in behalf of our College resulted in the building of a fine gymnasium in 1884. This ushered in a new kind of contest—Winter Gymnasium Sports. The initial one in 1886 consisted of sparring, spring-board leaps, exhibitions of tumbling, vaulting, jumping, performances on the horizontal and parallel bars, and on rings, together with drills with dumb-bells, Indian clubs and the like. The gymnasium was found to be too small to accommodate the hundreds of people who wished to witness the exhibitions, and a large hall is now annually rented and the exhibitions have become more like the regular field contests, made all the more interesting by the interspersion of sparring and tumbling. In the last contest (Feb. 1890) most of the events were opened to Lafayette's great rival for athletic supremacy, Lehigh University. Of these events, Lafayette captured six firsts and six seconds, to five firsts and four seconds of her rival.

These statistics show that our college has always held her own with other institutions, taking all things into consideration, but Lafayette's full power in field sports has never been shown owing to several disadvantages under which her athletes labor. It has been found that our runners are unable to do as good work as they should, without a cinder track and, as this is being written, we are pleased to hear rumors of a new Athletic field for Lafayette, to be given the students by the Alumni and which will have a suitable track, together with enclosed base-ball and foot-ball grounds. Our sincerest wish is that this rumor prove the truth.

BASE-BALL.

The base-ball history of Lafayette dates from the founding of the college probably. The recorded portion however, begins in 1870. Here we find amusing references to the great national game. For instance the chronicles hath it, "Our college nine went recently to Allentown to play Muhlenberg. Through a misunderstanding Muhlenberg had begun to play with another nine. A free fight then arose," in which the pen wielder adds, "Lafayette helped Muhlenberg." Another time the pitcher refused to pitch because the ball was too light. The games at this stage of the history were mostly between the classes, but occasionaly the Antelopes of Allentown or the Modocks of Scranton or some other team of the kind would tackle the home boys and find themselves at the small end of the score. The humorously inclined chronicler says in Oct. 1874, "Present appearances seem to justify supplying the college nine with a coffin."* A game was played June 5th, 1875, between Lafayette '76 and a team from the same class of Princeton and an admiring and wondering reporter has it that "the Princeton pitcher's ball had a remarkable bias." That's what they called it then. In '76 Lafayette put in the diamond a team, whose fame has been handed down through receding generations. Among the records made by it we note a victory over Princeton by a score of 6 to 2, and a game with the Louisville's, then the champion professional team in the world, in which the college team was beaten by a score of 12 to 8. Since then the teams have had their ups and downs, mainly ups, however, as the annexed table shows. We give a record of only the games played with other colleges, as it is by comparison with them and not with professional teams that a college's standing in base-ball can be reckoned. In this table it will be noticed that the defeats are mainly from colleges like Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Amherst and the like. Lafayette's score is placed first, and its opponents last.

Total Games won, 62; tie, 2; lost, 43.

The class base-ball contests were formerly of more importance and caused more excitement than those of the college team. Class rivalry was strong, and in 1879 a prize bat was put up to be won and the championship holders each year had their class engraved upon it. When the plate on the first prize bat became filled with winning classes another was purchased. We append the record engraved upon them :

FOOT-BALL.

It has not been many years since the Rugby game of foot-ball was introduced at Lafayette, but its growth in importance has become so phenomenally rapid that it bids fair to exceed our national game in popularity, not only at Lafayette but at every American college. The game has developed in proportion to its importance. It has changed from a contest of brute strength to a battle where cool heads, supple bodies, and good generalship are called for. Where not mere brawn and muscle are needed, but where all the craftiness and cunning of clear, strong minds is imperative. One of the greatest things a college has to struggle against is being misrepresented before the public, and in no phase of her actions, perhaps, is this more strongly shown than in this old-new game, foot-ball. People who have never seen a game think it one of the so-termed "relics of barbarism." The picturesquely inclined reporter, revelling in sensational accounts of everything, finds in the game of foot-ball, especially if he knows nothing about it, a splendid opportunity for startling and enlightening the ignorance of the world, and some alas ! believe his accounts. But to those, who have closely watched or played the game, it is the best of all games, and all they have to say is in its favor, every time.

It doesn't seem many years ago—it was in 1882—the year of the rennaisance in every department of athletics at Lafayette, when the first Rugby ball was first kicked out on the campus, and I recollect with what curiosity the youngsters of the town looked upon that oblong leather-covered article and discussed pro and con whether it was better than the old association ball used up to that time.

In 1882, as I have stated, foot-ball was introduced, and the first game played on the campus was with Rutgers on the seventh of November, and as may be supposed Lafayette came out at the wrong end, the score being eight goals and three touch-downs for the visitors to our college blank. However we picked up quickly as the record shows. In the fall of 1886 the college team won the championship of Pennsylvania and held it the following year. A list of all the games played is added :

CRICKET.

The cricket history of Lafayette is soon told. Cricket was introduced in the spring of 1880, but although enthusiasts struggled hard, they never could place it among the college sports, and after a short period, during which nothing more than a knowledge of the rules was gained, the cricket bats were laid aside to be used chiefly as ornaments to deck various "dens."

BICYCLING.

In 1880 the owners of "wheels" in the College decided to organize themselves into a Bicycle Club, and such an organization was effected Oct. 15, 1880. The original club was composed of ten members, who were very proud of neat maroon and gray uniforms. If I remember rightly some very nice drilling used to be done by the members, and their fine appearance was generally commented upon. Later on some of the cyclists entered races at Nazareth and other county fairs and won medals, although not making very remarkable records. The slow bicyle race was the "fad" at that time in the regular college sports, the length and condition of the track not admitting of a good fast race, although it was tried several times without success. From 1885 the club was little heard of until 1890, when enthusiastic admirers of the sport put it on its feet, or wheels, again.

TENNIS.

The great society game entered Lafayette in 1883, and increased rapidly in popularity, most of the nets however being the property of the several fraternities. In 1886 a college association was formed and was admitted later to the Inter-collegiate State Association. In 1888 J. W. Fox, '88, and H. Fay, '89, won second prize in doubles at the State tournament held at Bethlehem.

LACROSSE.

The newest applicant for athletic recognition at Lafayette is lacrosse. In their Freshman year some of the '90 men bought "sticks" and attempted to introduce it, but for three years nothing was done in the line of organizing a regular team. However during the last year a team was chosen and the first game of lacrosse was played here on May 31, 1890, with the crack Philadelphia team. The score was two goals to one in favor of the visitors.

This ends the history of athletics at Lafayette. Perhaps the Hare and Hounds Club should be mentioned which makes runs of from five to ten miles at their annual meeting. Perhaps too the Freshman-Sophomore cane rushes should be noticed ; but they can hardly be classed under the head of athletics, and are at the time of writing this supposed to have died a sudden death under the sentence of the Faculty.

In conclusion. Our alumni should read with satisfaction and pride the excellent records of the representatives of their Alma Mater in the athletic world, and should do all they can to help them keep the high position they have gained. Money is necessary to attain this end, for the better equipped the students are in the athletic line, the better work they can do, and the more renown can they bring upon our Alma Mater. An Advisory Committee of alumni has recently been organized, and all who wish to contribute to the advancement of athletics will find in this committee safe guardians for any contributions they may make. May Lafayette's record grow more and more commendable each year.

BIOGRAPHICAL SUPPLEMENT.

The following names appear in the College records, and deserve a more extended notice than it is possible here to give :

The First Annual Report of the Board of Trustees, read at the first public exhibition, October 8, 1832, appends to the list of the Faculty Mr. Daniel Gaston, as Business Agent, and Mr. Thomas Pollock as manager of the manual labor farm. Mr. Gaston's record is given on pages 143 and 156. Mr. Daubert held the position of farmer later, about 1837–8. His son, Amandus, is still living. (See p. 153.)

In March, 1834, Rev. Dr. Demme, of Philadelphia, was announced as elected to the chair of German Literature, but he failed to accept.

C. J. Haderman, A. M., is named in the Fifth Annual Report, Sept. 22, 1836, as Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, but it does not appear that he entered on the duties of the chair.

Dixon Lewers was an assistant teacher at an early date. After many years' residence in Wilkes Barre, where he was an active elder in the Presbyterian church, he returned to Easton, where he is now living, at the age of 82.

Jacob Green, M. D., Professor of Chemistry in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1836 delivered a course of lectures on chemistry to the students of Lafayette.

Johnston Godown was at one time (about 1834) superintendent of the manual labor department.

Philip W. Lerch was steward, 1841–44. He removed to South Salem, Wayne County, Pa., and was there quite successful in business ; he died about 1876.

Matthew S. Barnum appears in the catalogue of 1845–8 as steward and superintendent of the college premises ; he removed to Farrandsville, Clinton County, there engaged in business, and died some years ago.

Harrison Woodhull Crosby was assistant steward and chief gardener in 1845–9. He has of late years resided at Jamesburg, N. J., where he has been postmaster. The American Grocer, a New York journal, in its issue of February, 1887, says that on the college premises he originated the method now so well known, of hermetically sealing tomatoes in tin cans. He sent six each to the President of the United States and Queen Victoria, and received from each an acknowledgment of the gift. This was in 1847.

Christopher L. Rehn, A. M., was curator of the college cabinets while Dr. Osborn was Professor, 1866–9. For many years since he has been a resident of Philadelphia.

In 1850 the Model School ceased to be an integral part of the College, and was leased to private parties, Daniel E Phillips, Esq., being principal for one year, 1850–1, (See page 161 for his record) ; and Messrs. Wm. H. Woods, A. M., (now a lawyer in Lewistown) and his brother, the Rev. A. Miller Woods, having its care for the two following years. The latter is now pastor of the Presbyterian church in Mahanoy City. Several students of these gentlemen had a quasi relation to the college, and are attached to the classes of '52–3–4.

Among those who will be well remembered by the old students as faithful and efficient custodians of the college grounds, stewards or janitors, are the following :

Rev. Charles Moase, 1853–7, a retired clergyman from England, deceased ; buried in the Easton Cemetery.

John Gradwohl, college carpenter, 1860–76 ; built Blair Hall in 1866 ; founder of Grace Reformed Church ; died July 12, 1882.

Darby Keleher, 1853–63, a native of Ireland, who died in Easton, about 1870.

William L. Bechdolt, 1864–8, merchant from Baden, who is now a thriving market gardener at Seidersville.

William H. Weaver, 1868–83, a soldier in the war, now engaged as a stationary engineer in Philadelphia.

Thomas F. Burley, since 1884 chief janitor and messenger of the Faculty ; he has for many years been a member of the Select Council of the city of Easton, and a deacon in Grace Reformed Church.

Carl Rudolph Meissner has had charge of the botanical garden and grounds since 1868. He was born in Saxon-Prussia, June 22, 1833, and is an efficient member and officer of Zion's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Additions and Corrections.

Some errata may be found on page 6. While this volume has been going through the press,—having been placed in the printer's hands in 1889,—a number of changes of residence, etc., have occurred, which with other corrections and additions are here given. The reader is requested, with his own pen, to note in the body of the work such of these at least as pertain to his own class. Further corrections and additions will be welcomed by the compiler at any time; and if such can be written on one side of the paper only, they can be immediately pasted in their proper place in the Alumni Historical Scrap-Book, kept in the College archives.
